ALLIED COUNTRIES CELEBRATE THEIR GREAT VICTORY FOR RIGHT AS FIGHTING IN THE FIELD ENDS

Rejoicing Follows Signing of Allies' Terms by Germans; Signals Formerly Used for Air Raids Summoned Londoners to Celebrate Event

London, Nov. 11, 10.20 a.m.—Mr. Lloyd George announced that the Germans had signed the armistice terms of the Allies, saying:

"The armistice was signed at 5 o'clock this morning and hostilities are to cease on all fronts at 11 o'clock to-day." (3 a.m., Victoria Time.)

Paris, Nov. 11.—Official announcement of the signing by the German delegates of the armistice terms of the Allies and the termination of hostilities at 11 o'clock (3 a.m., Victoria Time), was given to the Paris press at 11.30 o'clock. Flags speedily began to appear and preparations were begun for a demonstration.

London, Nov. 11, 10.50 a.m.—News of the signing of the armistice soon reached those in the centre of London and flags were immediately flown to the breeze, and the afternoon newspapers issued editions, for which there was a great rush, at 11 o'clock. The first official celebration came when the old air raid signals were fired from the police and fire stations.

London then gave itself over to celebration of the event, which, although expected, was welcomed nevertheless.

London, Nov. 11, 12.32 p.m.—When the House of Commons met to-day Mr. Lloyd George, after the opening prayer had been said, moved that the House adjourn immediately. He proposed that the members proceed to St. Margaret's Church, on the western side of Westminster Hall.

Washington, Nov. 11.—When President Wilson drove to the Capitol at 12.45 p.m. to-day, he passed through streets thronged with cheering people.

Announced by Wilson.
Washington, Nov. 11.—President Wilson issued a formal proclamation at 10 o'clock this morning announcing that the armistice with Germany had been signed.

The proclamation follows:

FOURTEEN OF TWENTY-SIX STATES IN GERMANY ARE IN REVOLUTIONISTS' HANDS

Copenhagen, Nov. 11.—The revolution in Germany is to-day, to all intents and purposes, an accomplished fact.
The revolt has not yet spread throughout the whole Empire, but fourteen of the twenty-six states, including all the four kingdoms and all the other important states, are reported securely in the hands of the revolutionists.

Paris, Nov. 11.—The situation in Germany to-day, as far as it can be learned from news arriving through Switzerland, may be summed up as follows:

"In Prussia the Kaiser is gone and a Socialist Government in an undetermined form is in power.

"In Bavaria and Wurttemberg republics have been proclaimed. The royal family of Oldenburg has fled and a revolution is reported. A Council has been formed in Schleswig-Holstein, Frankfurt, Hamburg, Cologne, Essen, Muelheim, Aix-la-Chapelle and Emmerich, as well as many other cities, are in the hands of the revolutionists. Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and other ports are in the power of revolutionist naval units."

Copenhagen, Nov. 11.—The Grand Duke of Oldenburg has been dethroned and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-

Amsterdam, Nov. 11.—Public authority in the Prussian North Sea port of Danzig, is in the hands of Soldiers' and Workmen's Council formed by both the Socialist parties. There were no disturbances Sunday, but a general strike was declared for to-day.

Prussian Minister at Hamburg Has Been Put Under Arrest

Paris, Nov. 11.—9.50 a.m.—The Prussian Minister at Hamburg has been arrested at his home in that city, according to a Basel dispatch sent on Sunday but delayed in transit.

Liebknecht and Hasse Opposed as Members of German Ministry

London, Nov. 11.—The German Independent Socialists have opposed Dr. Karl Liebknecht, Hugo Haase and Herr Barth as members of the Government, a German wireless message announced.

RENFREW IS LOST FIFTEEN PERISH

Sailors Drowned When Fishing Vessel Was Wrecked Off West Coast

Thirteen fishermen, one of them a Victoria man, lost their lives yesterday afternoon at half past three, when the fishing boat Renfrew, of Victoria, was wrecked off the entrance to Nitinat. That is the substance of a telegram received at the offices of the Provincial Police this morning, from the Lummi Bay Packing Co., at Clooose. No further particulars of the wreck are yet available. It is presumed that the boat was caught in the hail end of the storm, which swept the waters of the West Coast yesterday. Three bodies have already been picked up, and the shores around the scene of the disaster are being carefully searched.
The following names are mentioned in the brief dispatch to the Provincial Police: John Pearson, of Bellingham; Einar Dyrseth, Hans Tollness, Fred Paulsen, Richard Erickson, Pete Hansen, Oscar Trondsen, Charles Hansen and John Wedahl, all of Seattle; E. Barrett, of Victoria, is also among the victims.
Louis Sanders, of Vancouver, was also drowned, according to the dispatch, and two Chinese, whose names are unknown, were mentioned as having perished.

Bodies Found:
The bodies of John Wedahl, Fred Paulsen and Einar Dyrseth have been picked up, after being dashed ashore by the terrible storm.
Late message from Clooose says twenty-five men on boat, of whom thirteen white and two Chinese were drowned.

Eitel, Second Son

Paris, Nov. 11.—(Havas)—Many sensational rumors became current here as a result of news of the signing of the armistice between the Allies and Germany. These reports were to the effect that Prince Eitel Friedrich, the second son of the ex-Kaiser, was prevented from committing suicide and that the ex-Kaiserin was dying.
Three German generals were said to have committed suicide.

CONDITIONS IMPOSED BY ALLIES

ROB GERMANS OF POWER TO RENEW THEIR ASSAULT ON CIVILIZATION

Germans Required to Withdraw Beyond Rhine; Most Important Ships in German Navy Surrendered to Allies and Rest to Be Disarmed and Kept Under Supervision of Allies; Germans to Surrender Vast Amount of Artillery and Get Back Within Their Borders as Prior to August 1, 1914

Washington, Nov. 11.—The terms of the armistice granted Germany by the Allies were read to Congress by President Wilson at one o'clock this afternoon. Assembled in the hall of the House where nineteen months ago they heard him ask for a declaration of war, the Senators and Representatives to-day heard him speak words which heralded peace.

The President spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress:

"In these times of rapid and stupendous changes it will in some degree lighten my sense of responsibility to perform in person the duty of communicating to you some of the larger circumstances of the situation with which it is necessary to deal.

"The German authorities, who have, at the invitation of the Supreme War Council of the Allies, been in communication with Marshal Foch, have accepted and signed the terms of armistice which he was authorized and instructed to communicate to them.

Military Terms.
"The strictly military terms of the armistice are embraced in eleven specifications, which include the evacuation of all invaded territories, the withdrawal of the German troops from the left bank of the Rhine and the surrender of all supplies of war.

"The terms also provide for the abandonment by Germany of the treaties of Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk.

"One—Military Clauses on Western Front: One—Cessation of operations by land and in the air six hours after the signing of the armistice.

Evacuation.
"Two—Immediate evacuation of the invaded countries—Belgium, France, Alsace-Lorraine and Luxembourg—so ordered as to be completed within fourteen days from the signature of the armistice.
"German troops which have not left the above-mentioned territories within the period fixed will become prisoners of war. Occupation by the Allied forces jointly will keep pace with evacuation in these areas. All movements of evacuation and occupation will be regulated in accordance with the detailed conditions laid down in the annexed note.

Surrender of Guns.
"Four—Surrender in good condition by the German armies of the following equipment: 5,000 guns, (2,500 heavy guns and 2,500 field pieces), 20,000 machine guns, 3,000 minenwerfers, 2,000 aeroplanes, (fighters, bombers—D Seventy-three and night bombing machines)—the above to be delivered in situ to the Allied troops in accordance with the detailed conditions laid down in the annexed note.
"Five—Evacuation by the German armies of the countries on the left bank of the Rhine. These countries on the left bank of the Rhine shall be administered by the local authorities under the control of the Allied armies of occupation. The occupation of these territories will be determined by Allied garrisons holding the principal crossings of the Rhine—Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne—together with bridgeheads at these points. In a thirty-kilometre radius on the right bank and by garrisons similarly holding the strategic points of the regions.

Neutral Zone.
"A neutral zone shall be reserved on the right bank of the Rhine between the stream and a line drawn parallel to it forty kilometres to the east, from the frontier of Holland to the parallel of Gersteinham, and as far as practicable a distance of thirty kilometres from the east of the Rhine lands shall be so ordered as to be completed within a further period of eleven days; in all nineteen days after the signature of the armistice.
"All movements of evacuation and occupation will be regulated according to the note annexed.
"Six—In all territory evacuated by the enemy there shall be no evacuation of the inhabitants. No damage or harm shall be done to the persons or property of the inhabitants. No destruction of any kind shall be committed. Military establishments of all kinds shall be delivered intact, as well as military stores of food and munitions. Equipment is not to be removed during the periods fixed for evacuation.
"Seven—Five thousand locomotives, 5,000 wagons and 10,000 motor lorries in good working order with all necessary spare parts and fittings shall be delivered to the Allied Powers within the period fixed for the evacuation of Belgium and Luxembourg. The railways of Alsace-Lorraine shall be handed over within the same period, together with all pre-war personnel and material. Further material necessary for the working of railways in the country on the left bank of the Rhine shall be left in situ. All stores of coal and material for the upkeep of permanent ways, signals and repair shops shall be left in situ and kept in an efficient state by Germany during the whole period of the armistice. All barges taken from the Allies shall be restored to them. A note appended (Concluded on page 14.)

MONSTER DEMONSTRATION MARKS CITY'S HAPPINESS AT SIGNING ARMISTICE

Thousands Parade Streets; Great Gathering Planned at Beacon Hill Park; Kaiser's Effigy to Be Burned at Mount Tolmie To-night; Illuminations Arranged

Notwithstanding the fact that last Thursday's demonstration of glee was proof enough that Victoria had not lost her knack of celebrating, it was not to be wondered at if the first few daylight-hours to-day were not marked by the same spontaneity. Very soon after seven o'clock, however, sirens, hooters and whistles took it for granted that Germany had decided not to endanger her position by overstepping the three days grace given to her by the great Generalissimo.

By nine o'clock staid citizens again bedecked themselves with the emblems of civilization, and gave themselves up to an enjoyment of the day's tremendous significance. Youth, middle-age and those in the autumn of their lives had completely yielded to the contagious atmosphere of joy and victory by the noon hour, and as the fragmentary details of the armistice were posted in the windows of The Times enthusiasm became unbounded.

The Day's Events.

Following the first flush of pent up emotion a gigantic parade will wind its joyous way to Beacon Hill Park, where in the green expanse full rein may be given to general thanksgiving—a community sing providing an excellent outlet for the best kind of jubilation. As the day wears on impromptu events will shape themselves and from the first signs of twilight all public buildings, including, of course, the stately pile across the bay, will be a blaze of illumination.

At 7 o'clock a procession will leave the Normal School for Mount Tolmie, where the effigy of a male being who set out to conquer the world more than four years ago, will be licked by consuming flame until all semblance of a dummy Kaiser has been blown to the four winds of Heaven—whither, by the way, he is not expected to go. F. A. Pauline, M. P. P., and Reeve Borden, legislative member and executive head of Saanich respectively, have been invited to head the procession.

Perhaps, the earliest celebration in the city was that by a bevy of young girl workers from a box factory on View Street. Arriving at work at 8 o'clock they were greeted with the announcement of a holiday granted by the firm. Each armed with a paper duster, the little band started off down town, where they seemed most disappointed to find that the rest of the city had not at that time "downed tools" and joined in the jubilation.

But their miniature celebration did not for long remain an oasis of joy in a desert of quietude, for shortly after nine o'clock the main streets of the city were invaded by an army of shipyard workers who, four abreast, marched into Broad Street to the accompaniment of cheers and headed by two enthusiastic waving flags. Arriving outside The Times Office, the procession wavered and then lost its military formation while the individual members crowded about the windows bearing the latest bulletins. Shortly after the crowd was swelled by an automobile of weird design, which to the uninitiated seemed to deserve the patronymic of "river," but which is in reality a tractor used in the shipyards for the hauling of lumber. Instead of lumber it carried a human freight of shipyard workers, who perched perilously on every side while one more daring youth graced the bonnet of the engine.

Noise an Essential.

From then on the crowd rapidly grew. Firecrackers, purchased from an apparently inexhaustible stock in the dim recesses of Chinatown, provided a series of punctuation marks in the general rejoicing. A favorite method of celebrating, seemed to be that of riding round the streets in anything which could be called an automobile, frequently with a rearward of battered saucepans or empty gasoline tins trailing on the ground and beating a defiant tattoo. Noise was the one great asset, and the ways and means of producing it were multifarious and exercised the ingenuity of the most fertile brains.

One of the most active noise-producing centres was the "dug-out," where the returned soldiers, with their powers of celebration apparently unimpaired and undiminished by the premature "letting off steam" on Thursday, fired off a miniature bombardment, the concatenation of explosions being heard all over the city.

To-Night's Events.

To-night the celebration will reach their climax when the Kaiser's effigy will be burnt at a monster bonfire on the summit of Mount Tolmie, a point easily discernible from every part of the city. Among other celebrations of a more local nature will be a bonfire in front of the Naval and Military Methodist Church at Esquimalt at 7 o'clock, to which all residents of the municipality are invited to bring fuel.

As part of the scheme of illumination which will be in vogue after dark, the Sayward Building will be ablaze with light from 8 to 2 o'clock, every light in the building to be left on for that period.

Parade Arranged.

A monster parade to assemble at the corner of Blanshard Street and Yates Street promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon, then proceeding through the streets of the city to Beacon Hill Park where exercises in celebration of the signing of the Armistice was decided on at a meeting held in the City Council Chamber at 10 o'clock this morning.

Army and Navy representatives were in attendance with members of every trade and profession, while public bodies in the city and surrounding districts were also represented.

The meeting very quickly appointed committees to take the matter in hand and it was decided to request the Fifth Regiment Garrison Artillery Band, the Band of H.M.S. Lancaster, and the Boosters' Band to participate in the event.

The fighting men of the Army and Navy will take the place of honor at the head of the procession and in this connection a public appeal for the use of motor cars in which the wounded and convalescent men might ride was answered spontaneously by local motorists. Automobile owners are requested to see that these men are looked after in this respect whenever an opportunity presents itself during the demonstration.

The Committee in charge found it very difficult to announce any definite programme for the event at Beacon Hill Park for the simple reason that the joyful public will pretty well take the matter in hand themselves, but they give the assurance that there will be an enthusiastic and lively time for everybody. One of the features of the programme to be held at the park will be a Community Sing, in which the public will be able

CIVILIZATION'S DEBT.

Let us not forget that territorial readjustments, reparation, restitution and demonstrations and other manifestations of the destruction of Prussianism do not square the account of the victorious united democracies of the earth with their heroic dead. The world that will rise from the sacred soil upon which have showered the blood and tears of millions must be a better world, a world humbled by the consciousness of its own defects and weaknesses and determined to seek the higher, the spiritual things of life. It was for the remoulding of the character of mankind that millions have suffered and died, for the creation of conditions which will enable peoples to pursue the path of virtue in years to come without fear and restraint. The obligation to keep faith with those who have fallen does not end with the ending of the war. It is only beginning. This is the time for communion with the sacred dead, and the solemn re-consecration of mankind to the ideals around which its gallant sons formed an impenetrable rampart, so that future generations will never fail to bare their heads in reverence in memory of those who gave everything that the world might be made a better place for them to live in.

THE ARMISTICE.

Fighting between the armed forces of the Allies and those of what was once the German Empire ended to-day. From now on activity on the battlefield will consist of the retirement of the hostile armies to their own country and the advance close behind them of the forces under the command-in-chief of Marshal Foch, and the application of the other terms of the agreement.

The armistice conditions are drastic and far-reaching and as such are the symbols of Germany's unconditional surrender. The Germans must evacuate France, Belgium, Alsace and Lorraine and Luxemburg and retire thirty to forty kilometres, or eighteen to twenty-five miles east of the Rhine, the Allies holding the west bank and the principal crossings at Mayence, Coblenz, Cologne and other bridgeheads.

They must give up the greater part of their artillery, machine guns, aeroplanes, 160 submarines, and more than a third of their navy. The neutral zone east of the Rhine behind which they must retire deprives them of Essen. They must liberate their prisoners of war within a month. They must abandon the treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest and allow the Allies access to Russia by Dantzic and the Vistula. They must restore all money and property they have taken from the countries over-run by them. Germany thus has been made incapable of further resistance, even if she were disposed to offer it, which, in view of the revolution, is out of the question in any case.

The armistice, of course, is a military matter pure and simple. It is not a peace agreement, but its terms have been so drafted by the Allies as to make it impossible for Germany to avoid accepting what peace conditions they may impose.

There is some apprehension that through the revolution Germany may side-step her liability in respect of compensating the victims of her devilish onslaught. This apprehension, to our mind, is unfounded. Only a purged and regenerated Germany can square that account. The revolution will extinguish her national debt, now nearly forty billions. If the Kaiser and his crowd had remained in power that debt would have remained. What would have happened to them if they tried to raise many billions more to meet the account presented by the Allies? France had a revolution in 1871 and because of that revolution, which expended the resources of the nation, fired the zeal, enthusiasm and will to sacrifice of the people for their newly-gained freedom, the heavy indemnity imposed by Prussia was paid in two years.

Besides, the cleansing of Middle Europe was one of the great aims for which the banded democracies of the world have been fighting, for only a purged Germany can cease to menace the freedom of civilization. The German revolution is a sure guarantee that the Allies have won a complete victory; that the rattle-snake has not only been unfanged but destroyed. This is what is meant by "the destruction of Prussian militarism," by the vindication of the precious ideals of democracy.

Many long months must pass before the conditions of peace will be settled and enforced. Many difficult problems must be solved. The collapse of the organizations of Central Europe through which it was possible for the various Governments to keep starvation at arms' length must now expose untold millions to death from famine. The whole system of distribution and transportation will fall to pieces and more food will be required by them than was actually available in time of peace. Fighting between the former belligerents is over but the world now must address itself to a gigantic task not only in the application of such terms of peace as will make such another conflagration impossible but to limit the horrors of the inevitable aftermath.

EXIT WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN.

William Hohenzollern, of Brandenburg, former German emperor and self-styled Kaiser, is a fugitive in Holland. The imperial dynasty erecited at Versailles in January, 1871, on the foundation of victory over France has become extinct after three generations. The German Empire, welded together by "blood and iron," is in ruins and as an empire never will rise again. It has gone the way of every empire founded on conquest and maintained by military force only since the world began. Its short record of forty-seven years is only another beacon light of history, a lurid warning to mankind that no such organization can endure unless it is held together by freedom and justice, unless its chief ingredient is moral principle, not material might.

"Watch that young man," said Bismarck shortly after William the Second had shouldered the unifier of Germany from the helm his iron hand had held so long. "If he is not careful he will have the whole of Europe about his ears." Bismarck feared that the restless, reckless, ambitious young ruler would untie the knots he had tied, that the mind which he saw was unbalanced would inspire activities that would destroy the great fabric he had erected with his base policies. Prussia, at his instigation, had sprung upon Denmark, Austria and France, and in doing so had created a monster which Bismarck doubted if the self-willed descendant of the "Brandenburg upstart" could control—the monster of Prussian militarism.

Bismarck was right in his appraisal of William the Second. But it was his tiger that the young emperor had taken charge of. William did not abandon the Bismarck policy. He merely tried to elaborate it. He dismissed the old Chancellor not because he disapproved of what he had done, but because he thought Bismarck would not carry on far enough. He had been cradled in Prussian militarism. His boyhood was passed amid the tumult of war, military pageantry and parade. From his infancy he had been stuffed with the idea that it was impossible to be the ruler of Germany and not carry a sword and scheme for the overthrow of his country's neighbors. He was mentally unsound to begin with and had all the physical manifestations of that condition. His training and environment fed his mania and for nearly thirty years Germany has been ruled by a man who was virtually criminally insane.

"I did not will this war," William Hohenzollern is reported to have said many times during the last four years. He not only will this war but he lived it. He was scarcely on the throne before he began to overhaul the school system of Germany; before he began to turn the whole country into a nursery of Prussian militarism and a barracks, stifling democratic tendencies and liberal political thought. All his policies had a military purpose. The encouragement of industry, the promotion of a great mercantile marine, the development of science, were all parts of a single design. Just as Bismarck had established Prussian supremacy over Germany by war, so he intended some day to establish German supremacy over all Europe and the world by war.

His megalomania increased with the progress—unsound and short-lived, if rapid—of his country. He saw himself the deputy of God, the super-sovereign of a super-race. He called himself "Kaiser," the "All-Highest War Lord." People who spoke ever so slightly of him were imprisoned for lese majeste. He wore half a dozen uniforms a day and stuffed his sons and even his daughters into soldiers' clothes before they were able to walk.

Twenty years ago his disordered imagination pictured him astride the world. "Henceforth," he said, "nothing will be settled on this earth without Germany and the German emperor." His brutal instructions to his soldiers on the eve of their departure for China were intended to overawe not the Chinese but the other nations. Confident that the world was afraid of him he continued to threaten it at every opportunity. Every few months he made speeches about his "mailed fist," the "invincible sword of his ancestors" and his "shining armor." He was mistaken; the world paid too little attention to him, since it knew him to be a potential madman. That was the world's ghastly mistake.

He schemed as cunningly, although more theatrically, as Bismarck schemed. He sent his brother Henry of Prussia to the United States and South America to organize German alliances for "The Day." He visited Jerusalem where he proclaimed himself as the champion of the Cross, and Constantinople where he declared himself to be the protector of Islam. He backed the Bagdad Railway project with the picture of himself as the "Emperor of the East" in his mind. He was behind Ballin and the Hamburg-American Steamship Company which was nothing but a tentacle of Potsdam. He linked himself with the Krupps. He was the inspirer of the German navy which has ended its course in a ludicrous fiasco, a fantastic sequel to his vaunt that "our future lies upon the water."

Like most of his kind he feared a revolt of the people and that fear confirmed his determination to try the Bismarck policy on the rest of the world. He and his satellites wanted to strike in 1913, but Italy's refusal to join in a war of aggression chilled their ardor. But at that time they determined to strike in the following year. The murder of Francis Ferdinand was merely a pretext. Another would have been found if that crime had not occurred.

But a short time ago Germany was the second nation in the world in trade and power, and William was the master of the greatest army and a navy second only to the navy of Great Britain. To-day his army lays down its arms, his empire is crumbling to pieces and he and the Great General Staff are fugitives in Holland, which can only be a temporary refuge at best. The expiation of the people William and his fellow "monarchical despots and military masters" have debauched has begun; the full expiation of the authors of all the incalculable suffering and woe of the last four years cannot be far away. Verily, "the mills of the gods grind slowly but their grind exceeding small."

THE PROVINCE AND PEACE

As the executive head of the Government of the Province of British Columbia, in the absence of Premier Oliver, who left the capital for Ottawa yesterday afternoon, the Hon. J. W. deB. Farris, Attorney General, issued the following expression of feeling on behalf of the people of the Province:

"British Columbia in common with all the other Provinces of the Dominion will look upon this day as the greatest day in her history. It will mark the starting point of a new era, an era in which her peaceful development may be pursued unhindered and undisturbed by the distressing clouds of war.

"The world ever knows of British Columbia's record in the great fight for freedom and the people of this Province may take just pride in the fact that her sons, yes and her daughters, have made such a noble contribution in order that civilization might be preserved and the peoples of the world allowed to live in peaceful security from the aggression of the despoiler.

"The Government of this Province, on behalf of her citizens, rejoices in the tidings which flashed across the continent this morning. But it is also mindful of war's tremendous griefs and sacrifices and it realizes how heroically British Columbia has borne her share of the sad part.

"Moreover, in the new joy ushered in by complete victory to the Allied arms it takes sympathetic remembrance of the unrequited grief of those brave men and women who have given their offerings in order that the rejoicings of to-day might be made possible.

ISLAND CENTRES RAPIDLY REACHING QUOTA SET IN VICTORY LOAN CAMPAIGN

Splendid Results Are Reported From West Coast, Surprising Canvassers; Aggregate for Island Now $847,000

Vancouver Island, outside Greater Victoria is now within $150,000 of her Victory Loan objective, according to a statement issued at noon to-day by G. H. Dawson. Up to last night $847,000 had been invested, the West Coast subscribing $46,450, and the Island districts together putting up $200,000 in one day.

Reports continue to pour into the headquarters of the Loan here of the further success of the various centres, for the Island has now reached a point well above eighty-five per cent of its quota.

The success of Cumberland which, in spite of the ravages of influenza, won an honor flag and then a crown to decorate the bunting is particularly remarkable, and it is announced that Nanaimo invested $100,000 in a day.

Chemainus has now qualified for an honor flag and Salt Spring Island, though in the Victoria district, will be rewarded similarly for its investment of about $15,000.

The West Coast surprise. The West Coast, however, all things considered, has been the big surprise of the campaign, for up to last night the investment of $46,450 has been reported from among the lonely settlements of this district. Nanaimo settlement has done particularly well, and the Chemainus and Nitinat country have "kept faith" in splendid fashion. Port Renfrew, Port Alice, Nootka and Tofoam are also away up in the Victory List.

The following figures show best how the West Coast has seen the vital necessity of money to bring the boys home, and has, without hesitation, acted accordingly:

Nanaimo Settlement	$ 3,150
Nanaimo Cable Station	2,450
Chemainus and Nitinat	5,600
Clayoquot	2,600
Kyuquot	1,600
Nootka	5,050
Port Renfrew	6,900
Chemainus	4,900
Quatsino	1,200
Ucluelet	1,000
Port Alice	12,000
Will Raise Quota.	$46,450

The whole Island, as seen by the appended figures, is doing its utmost, and is giving Greater Victoria a close race for its objective. "I am confident that the Island will raise its million," said Mr. Dawson when he gave out the following reports this morning:

Shawnigan	$10,500
Cobbie Hill	31,500
Duncan	159,400
Chemainus	49,350
Ladysmith	65,550
Nanaimo	235,900
Parksville	9,300
Qualicum and Central Alberni	8,000
Nanaimo	25,000
Union Bay	13,350
Courtenay	98,000
Cumberland	75,200
Alberni	17,000
West Coast	46,450
Cassidy	36,900
Total	$847,500

RECONSTRUCTION IS PARAMOUNT QUESTION

Mayor Todd Expresses Sentiments on Conclusion of Great World War

In answer to a telegraphic request from the Editor of The Winnipeg Telegram for an expression of sentiment concerning the glorious occasion of the signing of an armistice which has brought to a conclusion the great world war, Mayor A. E. Todd telegraphed this morning as follows:

"The signing of the armistice concludes an unprecedented sacrifice on the part of the civilized nations for ideals of democracy and marks the beginning of a new world era.

"Canada's devotion to the cause of the British Empire will live forever as a magnificent chapter in the country's history. For Canada the problems of reconstruction are second only to the war itself, and will prove a test of Canadian citizenship, patience and unity.

"Reconstruction problems can be partly solved by greatly increased development of the natural resources, agriculture and manufactures. In these developments the National Government must assist also, particularly in providing adequate ocean transportation, in order to ensure Canada's products from mines, forests, fields, fisheries and manufactures reaching the world's markets. Incidentally the national development of ocean transportation will provide business and freight for and assist in rendering revenue-producing Canada's new National Railways.

"Not only must an adequate merchant fleet be provided, but never again should Canada's ocean ports, nor Canada's troops, depend for protection upon war vessels of friendly or Allied Nations, and Canada's new national policy should include the development of an adequate battle-navy with proper, well equipped bases at Esquimalt, Halifax and elsewhere upon the Pacific and Atlantic coasts of the Dominion.

"Now is the time for every citizen of Canada with renewed energy to determine to conquer and overcome all reconstruction problems, whatever they may be.

(Signed) A. E. TODD,
Mayor of Victoria.

CIVIL SERVICE ACT TO HAVE A SPECIAL COMMISSIONER NOW

W. H. McInnes Will Have Much Material to Work on at Once

QUESTION OF SALARIES PRIMARY CONSIDERATION

The announcement is made by the Hon. J. W. deB. Farris, Attorney General and Acting Premier, this morning that W. H. McInnes, of Vancouver, has been appointed by the Provincial Government to the position of Civil Service Commissioner, in the room of A. N. Moust, upon whom the temporary administration of the Civil Service Act fell on its proclamation on July 1 of the present year.

Groundwork Laid. It will be remembered that the Comptroller-General was appointed to administer the Act in addition to his other duties. During the intervening weeks Mr. Moust has assembled all the information in connection with the Civil Service and has laid the groundwork for its complete re-organization. In view of the fact that the fundamental work is not completed, the Government has come to the conclusion that it is necessary to have the services of an official who will devote his sole attention to the work that will now devolve upon a Commissioner for this branch of the Government's activities.

Salary Question. Mr. McInnes is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and for the past twelve years has been a resident of British Columbia. The major portion of which has been spent in the City of Vancouver. He is forty years of age and by profession an accountant, practising in the Terminal City. One of the Commissioner's primary duties will be concerned with the grading and classifying of each branch of the Civil Service, ostensibly with

A BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Trumpet Vine

Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate
(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Where are you going, Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady nurse, of Uncle Wiggily Longears, the rabbit gentleman, one day, as he started out from his seashore hollow stump bungalow.
"Oh, just for a walk down to the ocean beach," he answered.
"Well, don't fall in," advised Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, as she went back in the kitchen to bake some seaweed tarts.
"I won't," promised the bunny.
To get to the seashore beach Uncle Wiggily had to go through a little patch of woods, and as he was in this shady spot he suddenly heard a voice sadly saying:
"Well, there's no use. I'll never get to the top and I might as well stop trying. Oh, dear! And I did so much want to get up high!"
"Hut! That sounds like some one trying to climb," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "I sincerely hope and trust that it is not the nose-pinching baboon monkey," he went on. "But it can hardly be, because he can easily scramble up anywhere. I'll take a look."

So the bunny rabbit gentleman peeked through the trees, and he saw a vine, with dark red flowers, some what like morning glories. The vine was twined on a tall pine tree.
"Was that you calling?" asked the bunny, for he knew the language of flowers.
"It was," answered the blossoms. "We are flowers of the trumpet vine, and we want to climb up to the top of the tree so we can look far off and see the sun. But alas we can't!"
"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily.
"Because there are too many tree branches in the way," answered the trumpet vine, and Uncle Wiggily, looking saw that the flowers were shaped just like a trumpet, or a megaphone that firemen call so loudly through, when they want more water to put out the blaze.
"We never shall get to the top of the tree," sighed the trumpet flowers.
"Oh, yes you will!" said kind Uncle Wiggily. "I'll help you."
Then the bunny rabbit gentleman, with his strong teeth, gnawed down a long, slender pole in the woods. And, with this pole he poked to one side the tree branches that were in the way of the trumpet vine flowers, so they could grow up to the top, look afar off and see the sun.

"Oh, thank you, so much!" said the trumpet flowers, speaking quite loudly. Just like the megaphone horn.
"Pray don't mention it," said Uncle Wiggily.

"You may pick one of our flowers to wear in your buttonhole, and look stylish," said the vine. "Take it to Nurse Jane."

"I will," said Uncle Wiggily. Then he picked a "large trumpet flower" and went on to the beach. When he reached the sandy shore he saw Sammie and Susie Littlehail, the rabbits; Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels; Lulu, Alice and Jimmie Wibblewobble, the ducks, and Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boys, all in the ocean bathing.

"Come in, the water's fine!" cried Susie, waving her bathing cap at Uncle Wiggily.

"I'll have to go get my swimming suit on," said the bunny, and just then Jackie Bow Wow began to bark and he cried out:
"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Come quick! Johnnie Bushytail is swimming away out in the rough ocean and there's a big shark after him and he doesn't know it. I hollered and hollered at him, but I can't make him hear 'cause the waves make so much noise. Look!"

"Come back, Johnnie! Come back!" cried Uncle Wiggily.
"But the squirrel boy didn't hear because there was so much noise from the waves in his ears. And the shark was getting nearer."
"Come back, Johnnie! Come back!" shouted all the animal boys and girls.
But the squirrel boy didn't hear because there was so much noise from the waves in his ears. And the shark was getting nearer and nearer.
"Come back, little squirrel boy—come back!" shouted the fireman dog on the beach. But Johnnie didn't hear.
"Let me call to him!" shouted the trumpet vine flower in Uncle Wiggily's buttonhole. "I have a very loud voice!"
Then the trumpet flower boomed out: "Come back, Johnnie! Come back!"
And the squirrel boy heard the trumpet flower above the noise of the waves, and swam back safe, before the shark had time to bite him. So you see, flowers are good for something else besides sending to girls.

Miss Davis, of the teaching staff of the High School, is visiting in Vancouver as the guest of Mrs. Mafr, Beach Avenue.

Miss Sylvia Huntley, who has been doing volunteer nursing in the city, returned to her home at Pentiction last week for a rest.

Announcement is made of the marriage in Quebec on October 17, of Irene Gertrude Pickard, of Victoria, to G. Beverly Irven, of Upper Point de Bute, New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins, of Belleville Street, have announced the marriage of their daughter Eva to Capt. C. C. Reay, R.E.A., Imperial Army, son of the late Col. and Mrs. Reay, of London, Eng. The marriage took place on September 21 at St. Mark's Church, Notting Hill, London.

Col. J. S. Dennis, who arrived in the city yesterday prior to his departure for Siberia, headed the British Canadian Recruiting Mission to the United States and had headquarters at Chicago up till the end of September, when his work finished, he was appointed by the Dominion Government to a special executive position with the Siberian Expeditionary Force. Recently returned from Vancouver where he conferred with the Red Cross officials in that city, Col. Dennis while there emphasized the need of the civil population in Siberia, together with the thousands of soldiers who are present, of medical supplies, food and medical supplies of any kind. The signing of the armistice with Germany does not mean that Red Cross supplies must stop, but rather that the efforts of the workers be redoubled to cope with the needs on the Siberian front.

In the presence of intimate friends of the principals, a very pretty wedding took place on Saturday evening at "Breadalbane," the minister's residence, 1182 Port Street, when Captain the Rev. Dr. Campbell, celebrated the marriage of John Ridley Wilson, of H. M. S. Lancaster, now at Esquimalt, and Miss Margaret Laidie Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, of 75 Queen Street, Victoria. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a smart travelling suit of navy blue serge, and carried a beautiful bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended as bridesmaid by her sister, Miss Rosie Robertson, who wore a becoming suit of dark blue serge, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridegroom was accompanied as groomsmen by his friend, Alfred Keelcey, also of H. M. S. Lancaster. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson expect to leave for England via Cape Horn about the middle of December.

WAR AND THE SUGAR BOWL

No. 1.

Sugar is scarce. There are fewer ships to carry supplies from the East Indies. They are used in carrying troops and munitions. The West Indies, from which Canada draws her supplies, must furnish sugar for twice as many people as last year. If we put ships into the sugar trade, and if we continue to use that second needless spoonful of sugar in tea and coffee we shall have to, it will lengthen the war. Therefore, save sugar. Use strictly no more than two pounds for each person in the family in a month.

WOMEN DEMAND PART IN PEACE CONFERENCE

Organizations at Calgary Urge Premier Borden to Appoint Women Representatives

At a meeting of representative women of Calgary on Friday night a resolution was passed and forwarded to the Prime Minister requesting the appointment of a woman to assist and advise the Premier on behalf of Canadian womanhood at the peace conference.

Alderman Annie Gale, of the Calgary City Council, Mrs. Penkell, President of the Local Council of Women, and members of the Teachers' Alliance, Nurses' Association, Next-of-Kin, Peace Club, Anti-Tuberculosis Society and other important societies, were present at the meeting. In the resolution the women pointed out that representatives of many interests in Canadian life had already been selected to advise and assist the Prime Minister in the preliminary discussions of the terms of peace, and that as women had already been called into conference with the Government to assist in carrying on the war, it was fitting that they be given at least one representative on the peace conference delegation.

Communications were also sent to Hon. A. L. Sifton and Hon. Gideon Robertson, urging their support without further delay to the women of Canada during the epidemic of influenza.

A committee was appointed to urge women all over the province to support the resolution by individual telegrams to the Premier, meeting of various societies being impossible.

CLEARING IT UP:
The popular conception of the end of the war is the signing of a peace protocol, followed by fireworks, joy bells, and the immediate cessation of hostilities.

As a matter of fact wars in the past have rarely, if ever, ended in this way, and it is unlikely that a conflict such as this will terminate like a stage play. Many months, probably, will be needed to "clear up the mess," and there may even be fighting after peace has been signed, judging from what has happened in the past.

The great American Civil War was officially ended on April 9, 1865, when the Confederate General Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox, in Northern Virginia. Yet, on May 8, nearly a month later, there was desperate fighting in Alabama, and again on the 25th of the same month in Texas.

Went on Fighting.
Similarly, although the peace treaty that nominally ended the Crimean War was signed on March 29, 1856, a stubbornly-contested battle was fought on May 2 between Russian and Turkish troops near Karak, the commanders on both sides afterwards professing complete ignorance of the fact of the war having been concluded.

As a matter of fact the present war will end like all the others, weary and have preceded it, when the last shot is fired; no sooner, and no later. Meanwhile, however, it is probable that an Order-in-Council, or some similar proclamation, will be issued defining the exact date when hostilities are officially to be considered as having ceased.

You see, so many important legal and other questions hinge upon that little phrase, "For the duration of the war," that it will be necessary to define it exactly—if need be even by Act of Parliament. In the recent report of a Select Committee on Emergency Legislation, it was recommended that the "end of the war" should be held to be the date when the treaty of peace is finally binding on the respective belligerents—that is, the date when ratifications of the treaty are exchanged or deposited.—Tit-Bits.

RED TRIANGLE HAS WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Giving the "Mother Touch" to Work at Willows Camp Hut

In furtherance of the policy which has been observed by the Y. M. C. A. organization in England and France, where the idea has met with marked success, the local military branch of the "Y," has now the assistance of a woman's auxiliary called the Red Triangle Auxiliary. By arrangement with the authorities this auxiliary, of which Miss Finlayson, 1005 Terrace Avenue, is the secretary, is permitted to enter the Willows Camp to assist the military secretaries, H. G. Terbrook, with the work at the Hut.

Mothers' Corners.
These women work along the lines of the "Mothers' Corners," which is a part of the "Y" organization, and they give the womanly touch which is so invaluable a factor in community work of this kind. Mending for the soldiers, serving refreshments to the many men who, too sick to attend parade, yet not so ill as to necessitate entrance in to hospital, through the hut from the time it opens at 10 a.m. throughout the day and evening, they accomplish a work which is greatly appreciated by the men. Before the quarantine went into effect, the auxiliary kept the hut furnished with fresh flowers, and in many ways gave that subtle touch which reveals a woman's influence.

This auxiliary, along with the many women's organizations which have undertaken to themselves the welfare of the invalids, including the Florence Nightingale Chapter, I. O. D. E. the Willows Camp Chapter, and an organization comprising a number of young people in Victoria West, as well as the numerous individuals who by reason of the existing circumstances have been unable to make personal visits to the camp—all are co-operating to the fullest extent in the matter of caring for the convalescents.

Private Entertainment.
In line with their social work, the "Y," with the assistance of the auxiliary, is taking organized steps to induce a number of private residents of the city to open their homes to the soldiers as soon as the quarantine lifts. With no central rendezvous and far away from friends—most of the men being total strangers to the city—pitfalls are apt to loom up before them, and it is in an endeavor to avoid these possibilities that entertainment will be sought for the men in private homes.

As will be readily understood, the programme at the hut has to be considerably curtailed owing to lack of space during the emergent conditions prevailing. The writing privileges, however, are enjoyed by the men to the full as will be evidenced by the fact that over $100 worth of stamps were sold in the hut on Sunday last.

VICTORIA SOLDIER TELLS OF BRUTAL HUN TORTURERS

Beaten by Guards When Fainting With Hunger and Exposure

FORCED TO WORK ON FRONT LINE RAILROAD

A sample of one of the many crimes which will be held to the account of Germany when the final peace terms are being considered is given in the tale told by Private Thomas Booth, now spending his first leave since arriving home after experiences in German prison camps which have brought him down from a tall robust healthy man as he left Victoria with the 103rd Battalion to a mere shadow of his former self.

Pte. Booth related experiences of his own and treatment meted out to men unfortunate to fall into the hands of the brutal Hun captors who will bring home to the people of Victoria more than anything else the atrocities which have been committed in the name of

PTE. THOMAS BOOTH.

Germany in view of the fact that some of the men that he refers to are men who left this city.

The Times reporter, to whom Pte. Booth described the hardships he and his comrades went through remembering him as a stalwart cheerful soldier of B Company of the 54th Battalion, which he was drafted in the latter part of 1916. Booth in those days weighed about 150 pounds, swung a pick or used a shovel throughout a night's working party, carried the heavy loads demanded of a soldier through muddy trenches and the worst kind of roads, and then marched back to billets with a joke on his lips and a cheery word for his chums. He did his spells in the front line with a will, and stood the heavy duties the men were called upon to perform preparatory to the memorable attack on Vimy Ridge without losing a bit of his cheerfulness or showing any signs of weakening under the heavy strain of work. When his company were waiting in the jumping off trenches for the opening of the barrage which was the signal for them to climb out of the trenches and commence the journey across No Man's Land and attack the German trenches, Booth was apparently as fit a man as any in the company. In that action he was taken prisoner, and when he was sent back to Canada he had to be marked as a cot case. He weighed not more than 100 pounds when he left his German captors in August 1918, suffering from tuberculosis brought on by the conditions under which he has lived. The gaunt, stoop shouldered man, perspiring from the small exertion of walking around the house of his sister with whom he is staying, was a far cry from the stalwart soldier who was hanging loosely on his sparsely frame as a mere semblance of the cheery soldier who swung along the streets of France with his rifle and heavy pack, exchanging jokes with the French children anxious to show their knowledge of English. To-day it is an exertion for him to stand at the telephone.

How He Was Taken.

Booth was still in the fighting and unharmed when his battalion consolidated at the Germans' second or third line trench. To the best of his recollection he and several other men saw them Pte. Wm. Simpson of Spring Ridge, and Pte. John Bell, who also left Victoria with the 103rd Battalion, were about forty yards ahead of the Germans' third line trenches when they heard orders shouted to "dig in." It was too late for the little party who were surrounded by numbers against whom it was impossible to resist. They were taken to a Hun dugout, where they were kept until night. At night they were taken out to commence a march which lasted the whole of the night and to the middle of the next day, and for the first part of the journey were under the heavy barrage the Canadians were putting over. For part of the journey they had muffled Liblans for guards and during the long march, about a half pint of burned acorn coffee, and a "pretty slim slice of black bread" was their only refreshment.

Snow and Rain.

They were taken to Douai and held there for three days and then to Lille, where they were put in a fort for ten days. A fall of snow on the day of the action was followed by rain and a cold spell of weather, but the brutal captors not only took away the overcoats but also the leather coats worn by their prisoners, and at the fort where the party was increased to 108, including some men of the imperial forces they were forced to sleep on a stone floor and with no blankets. No fire from which to obtain a little warmth or to provide a little spark of cheer to their dreary surroundings was allowed. A half slice of potato bread, weighing at the most six ounces, issued each morning, was the only solid food supplied to the prisoners. An issue of acorn coffee, a little more than a half pint, and a small helping of soup at dinner time and night completed their issue. During his year and a half's imprisonment and including the time he spent in hospital, this, says Booth, was all he was ever given. When men were in hospital, endeavoring to recover from the illnesses created by the exposure and overwork they were subjected to no change in the "diet." At the fort, he said, "the men would have to walk the floor all night in an attempt to ease their hunger and the only warmth they could get was that obtained from huddling together."

On the tenth day they were told they were to be taken to Germany, but instead of that they were marched to Douai, where they were housed in some French barracks for a night. They were then marched for half a day diagonally towards the German line. Halted at a half-built house with fresh timbers and no floor or windows they were told that was to be their home. With a quantity of barbed wire and stakes they were ordered to build their own cage surrounding the house.

"Punishment Prisoners." As a reason for putting the prisoners on war work within a day's march from the trenches, the men were told they were to be held for reprisals. Their punishment, the captors informed them, would get worse and worse until the German prisoners were taken thirty kilometres away from the firing line. "Write to Lloyds," they were told, "why you are here; that you are here for punishment that will get worse every day, and the exact conditions," they were told through an interpreter, in English schoolmaster among the prisoners was forced to write the letter which some of the men signed. Booth himself wrote a letter to his relatives but rather than cause them anxiety, eliminated anything referring to his hardships. The letter never reached its destination.

Was Reported Killed.

The men at the camp were never recorded as prisoners of war. Private Booth declares, and news was sent to his own relatives that he was killed in action. It was not until June, when he was taken to a prison camp in Germany, that he was reported as a prisoner of war, and in November a prisoner of war. It was not until Year's Day following that his wife and little child and mother in Glasgow heard from a postcard he sent that he was still living. The shocks, he claims, were mainly caused by the hastening of the death of his heart-broken sister in Scotland.

Speaking of the work they were forced to do, Private Booth says: "We started at 5.30 in the morning and were given a drink of coffee and a slice of bread. We were marched five kilometres towards the line and handed picks and shovels and told to make a track for a railroad to get ammunition straight up to the line. They worked until noon, each day, when they rested for twenty minutes, but were given nothing further to eat. Work was then resumed until 3.30, and then commenced on the five kilometre march back to the half built house. Russian prisoners, they were told, by the German guards, were working from the front line towards them to connect up the railroad track. A Greek in the imperial forces and a Dutchman, who could both speak German, were used as interpreters.

Blows and Abuse to Do War Work.

Blows and abuse were the common lot of the men, and Private Booth himself declares he has had both. "It seemed," he said, "as if their intentions must have been deliberately to incite us to open revolt for an excuse to shoot. If we straightened our backs or stood up straight, we were struck or three lumps of hard clay at us. They would push and hit us with sticks and the butts of their rifles. Two men attempted to escape and got as far as the German front line, but were caught and brought back and put on bread and water for three days. Men weakened by exposure, hunger and hard work frequently fainted. They were called 'daisy' and 'daisy' and 'scoundrels' and then set to work again." "The men reached their home, about 6.30 o'clock in the evening, and were allowed a small fire until 8 o'clock if they could pick up any pieces of wood in their path on the way back. As already mentioned, their great coats and leather jackets had been taken away, and," says Booth, "we often went to bed drenched to the skin and woke up the same way. We very seldom had a dry night, and especially in the winter, when you were hungry. Your stomach grinds until you have to get up and walk the floor. We used to lie down on the concrete floor in the basement, to try and sleep because we were so dry and cold in the house. We could get no timber to close up the openings made for windows and doors, and had nothing we could hand up. The amount of soup we got at night was just enough to aggravate, and we used to lie on the concrete floor longing for morning to get the slice of black bread and acorn coffee."

Kicked Women and Children.

"French women and children would try to give us a piece of bread or a few cigarettes, but if the German guards saw them they would kick them and knock them down, and take the bread and cigarettes away from the prisoner or the French woman or child. Anyone who took pity on us that way was taken before the German officer in charge of the town and fined."

By June, three months after they were captured ninety of the 250 men working at Douai were absolutely unable to work. Privates Booth and Bell, the Victoria men, being among the ninety, and they were sent to Dulmen Prison Camp in Germany. Here for the first time, he says, they were registered and properly recorded as prisoners of war. Their rations were the same as before, except that they had soup twice a day, but "the quarters were heaven in comparison," he says. We had a big wooden shack and hammocks made of coconut matting slung one above the other and two blankets each. Booth, with several other men developed dropsy, caused, as a Belgian doctor attending them said, by the lack of solid food, the black bread he also stated, being two-thirds potato. Although they were sent to the camp hospital in which one or two of the men died, the food supplied was the same. The ominous cough, which had been worrying him for some time, also began to get worse, and he was given three pills a day, which it was claimed would allay it. "Soon after we were properly registered," he said, "bread began to arrive from Copenhagen and Red Cross packages, but up to that time our stomachs were grinding for the next meal. We afterwards got two loaves a week from Copenhagen and six provision packages a month. From the time we were properly registered as prisoners our hunger troubles were over and we did not have to eat the German stuff at all. Three or four of us would combine together and we would just be able to manage things, so we would be alright if a package went astray." Working conditions were easier for the men and apart from the food issued by the Germans, Booth had no complaints to make regarding Dulmen.

Kindness Came Too Late.

He remained there until March, 1918, having lost track of Private Bell, who was sent somewhere else in the meantime, and was then sent to work on a German farm, the farmer having put up a 600 mark bond for his return. The farmer had three sons in the firing line, and Booth was treated with kindness by the man and his wife. The sufferings previously inflicted by his brutal captors had made him a good subject for kindness, but the first spark of human nature shown in the land of the Hun came too late. The cough got worse and an abscess broke out on his foot. He also has a big scar in his side from an abscess, and he had to be sent back to Dulmen, where he was placed in a hospital for men with lung trouble a year after he was captured as a fit front line man of the Canadian army. He remained in hospital until July, during which time he describes the medical treatment as "not except for a couple of pills," and then was sent to Holland where he was examined by a neutral medical board and ordered home.

Early one Monday a smartly dressed woman entered the big draper's.

"I am sending back those coats you let me have on approval on Saturday," she told the manager, blandly. "I find that none of them really fit me."

Then with a gracious smile she sallied out of the place. But she didn't smile so blandly that night when she received a little parcel and a letter, which read:

"Madam,—We are returning the pair of gloves and the hymn-book which you inadvertently left in the pocket of one of our coats which didn't fit."

LETTERS

Letters addressed to the Editor and intended for publication must be short, and legibly written. The longer an article the shorter the chance of insertion. All communications must bear the name and address of the writer, but not for publication unless the owner wishes. The publication or rejection of articles is a matter entirely in the discretion of the Editor. No responsibility is assumed by the paper for MSS. submitted to the Editor.

REPLY TO "SAFETY FIRST."

To the Editor.—"Safety First" letter has just come to my notice and, although I have only a few hours where I must protest against even the well-meaning writers making statements so far from correct and thus creating in the public mind much unnecessary uneasiness.

The Galliano had aboard some of my dearest and nearest friends. I served on this ship for over a year and saw a variety of weather in every portion of the British Columbia coast during that time. I served for eight months as quartermaster on her sister ship, the Malaspina, making many trips to Triangle Island and the Queen Charlotte Islands, etc., in both vessels, and I now hold a coastwise passenger mate's certificate.

"Safety First" may hold a better certificate and may have sailed on these vessels much longer than I have, but his letter betrays his absolute ignorance of what constitutes seaworthiness. Stauncher boats than these would be hard to find, they are as buoyant as corks and every appliance on board is of the best quality and kept in the best condition. The voyage of the Galliano from the Old Country established her seaworthiness, and I would recommend "Safety First" to inquire into this little incident.

"Engulfed, swamped, deluged!" These may have been words used in the press, but who knows whether she met this fate? Who knows that she did not strike a reef and founder quickly? My personal opinion is that she struck a reef, but I am the last man to suppose that the mighty ocean has not swamped much larger vessels as easily as though they were row-boats.

Captain Pope was an extremely careful navigator and keen on having everything pertaining to the safety of his ship and crew being in perfect order. Boat drill, fire drill, the use of the collision mat and the condition of the life-boats and life-belts were vital matters in Captain Pope's opinion and his crews were, therefore, particularly well posted in these matters.

It is my hearty wish that the passenger ships on this coast were as seaworthy and as well-found as the Galliano. Although she was possessed of a quick action not likely to comfort the seafaring youngster, I trust that I may never be called upon to take more chances at sea than do the boys on the Malaspina to-day.

LET THERE BE LIGHT.

To the Editor.—A fellow does not like to be considered a grouser but if some of the editors of the city who sit at its gates had only experienced a few of the ups and downs of campaigning, and retired as bodily and nerve-wrecked remnants, to the shelter of the Connaught Home at Esquimette, it would appeal to the sympathetic side of their nature, when returning home after dark, and make them realize that going over the top had some of the dangers of the real thing. Just one little light would make all the difference, one light in London Street near the top and near the gate where the light from Admiral's Road is lost. If we could only walk in the middle of the road it would be all right, but that is too much like the shell-streaked plains of Flanders to be willingly negotiated. Some poor fellow will be "getting his" when going up after dark, if things are not made a little brighter on top, but it will be rather late then, and there may be many dark evenings before the clocks are altered again.

Pardon me, Sir,
It used to be Alec
Not so long ago,
But now you're used to "Sir"
Begin the pile
Began to mount and soar
Long about 1910
And the war, well the war
Just about doubled it, eh?
Good! Now about Victory Bonds?
WHAT??? You don't know?
Maybe take a few!
"Not a piker, no!"
"Spend as you go!"
"Not as rich as folks think!"
"Family's expensive."
Well, Alec, Sir, I mean,
Isn't it time to cut
The reckless spending.
Economize, as you tell
Your clerks to do.
Try sacrifice and thrift,
Buy Victory Bonds!
It's good sense, Alec,
And duty, too.
Excuse me, I mean Sir.

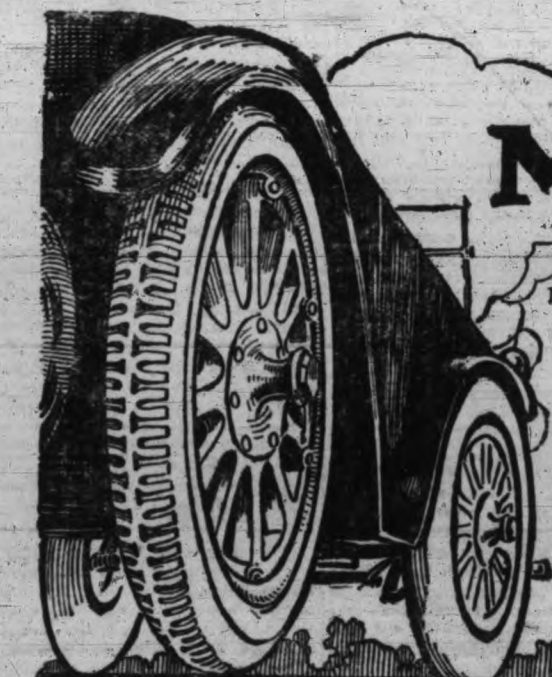

"Eh, but this war is a big 'un," said the philosopher, expansively. "The whole world is full of war and fighting and munition-making for war—in every place from A to Z—from Amersmith to Zeebrugge."

LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BY JOHN SIDNEY BRAITHWAITE, M. A., C. S.

The following report is the substance of a Lecture on Christian Science which was to have been delivered under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Victoria, B.C., on Sunday, November 3rd, 1918, by John Sidney Braithwaite, M.A., C.S., Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., but owing to the ban at present existing in the City on all public meetings, the Lecture had to be cancelled.

A LECTURE ON Christian Science Entitled Christian Science: A Reason for Hope

By John Sidney Braithwaite, M.A., C.S.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

I have entitled this lecture "Christian Science: A Reason for Hope" because it seems to me that to-day the Scriptural injunction to be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you is sounding in our ears more insistently than ever before. The sick and the sorrowing, weary of the husks of materialism, are turning to the spiritually minded and asking for a reason for hope. Our soldiers and sailors returning from their labors in many fields, eager to forget the waste, the privations, and the horrors of the battle field, ask us for a reason for hope. And what have we to give them? Are we going to be satisfied with the mere attempt to minister to their material needs? Do they not demand of us something more than that? Christian Science is with us to-day as a reason for our highest hope, and my endeavor in this lecture will be to set that reason clearly before you.

THE FIRST STEP

It has been said that the first step in an investigation is to ask the right questions, and I am going to assume that no one here is actuated by any other motives than the desire to receive clear answers to right questions. With your permission I propose to formulate for myself these questions that appear to present themselves most naturally in the minds of thinking people on the subject of Christian Science and then to endeavor to answer them with what lucidity I am able to command.

The first question that presents itself is, "Is Christian Science simple and easy to understand, or does it require a highly educated intellect or particular kind of brain to grasp its teaching?"

Christian Science is as simple as Christianity itself, and of Christianity it was said by its first Teacher, "Whoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein."

The fact is that if Christianity had required the highly trained intellect as the soil in which it could best flourish, it would never have availed the great mass of mankind, from whom such training is definitely excluded either through lack of time or means. How would it have been possible for the Galilean fishermen, a primitive and uneducated class, to forsake their means of livelihood for a bundle of theories or intellectual subtleties? Of course, we know it did not require any such soil as the highly trained intellect, but we find, nevertheless, that while the message of the gospel has been no respecter of persons, it has made its strongest appeal to a certain type of mind—the lovers of simplicity and the humble-minded.

And, similarly, with Christian Science, of which it would be true to say that it would not be either Christian or Science were it not profoundly simple, and I would remind those who are disposed to insist that anything entitled to be called Science must be beyond the reach of the average man, of Professor's Tait's words, that Science is that which "aims at giving us a common-sense view of the world we live in."

A REDISCOVERED ART

You will naturally ask, "In what sense is it claimed that Christian Science is a new discovery in this age?" Well, of course, Truth is eternal and can never be new, but on the other hand its revelations are continually renewed, and the spiritually minded may be said to live in a veritable atmosphere of discovery. The first Teacher of Christianity laid down the healing ministry as an integral part of his message, and although it was for some time practiced in the early Christian churches, the old-time exponents of the Master's teaching early lost sight of its essential significance, and at last surrendered it entirely to the more material systems. In the latter part of last century Christian Science appeared to challenge this sad neglect and supported its right to do so with many remarkable and well-authenticated cases of healing. Because of these modern miracles all eyes were turned toward the gentle and unassuming figure of a New England woman, who in announcing her discovery of the Science of Christianity challenged the Christian world to accept the reasonableness of her conclusions. This woman was Mary Baker Eddy.

Mrs. Eddy's contention was that while lying at death's door she had been suddenly restored to perfect health without the aid of any material remedy or appliance. She maintained unwaveringly that while the agency in this healing was purely Christlike, still it had a scientific explanation. But just as in the case of all great discoveries, years of patient research have been needed before they could be elucidated and presented to the world in scientific form, so in the case of Mrs. Eddy's healing she was not able immediately to lay before the world its scientific explanation. This is her own account of what happened (Science and Health, p. 109):

"For three years after my discovery, I sought the solution of this problem of Mind-healing, searched the Scriptures and read little else, kept aloof from society, and devoted time and energies to discovering a positive rule. The search was sweet, calm, and buoyant with hope, not selfish nor depressing. I knew the Principle of all harmonious Mind-action to be God, and that cures were produced in primitive Christian healing by holy, uplifting faith; but I must know the Science of this healing, and I won my way to absolute conclusions through divine revelation, reason, and demonstration."

DISCOVERER'S EXPERIENCE

Mrs. Eddy was so unprejudiced herself that she believed that her wonderful discovery would meet with immediate universal acceptance. So free was she from egotistical notions of self-advancement or ambition that she supposed it natural that the Christian churches would gratefully acknowledge the restoration of the lost art of Christian healing, just as one who had lost a priceless gem from his diadem would welcome its return. She was, however, quickly brought face to face with the fact that even her own church which she loved most was not ready for an interpretation of the Scriptures which differed from that which years of theological teaching had made acceptable to its members. Mrs. Eddy met the attacks which were made upon her in a spirit of true charity and forgiveness, while her conviction that for the work in hand she was commissioned by God gave her the strength and courage to wait patiently for His sanction in all that she did. The constant demands on her as Leader of a rapidly growing movement caused her to yearn for the freedom to step aside from this position and let some one else take her place. But it seemed as if there was no one but her fitted for this great responsibility or equal to so heavy a burden. She therefore remained faithful at her post until her ninetieth year, when, in a way that she neither sought nor feared, she passed from our sight. That the task entrusted to her had been faithfully completed, is best proved by the fact that since her departure the growth of the movement and the volume of its healing work, so far from suffering diminution, have exceeded all expectations.

A BETTER HOPE

What then is the nature of the hope which Christian Science brings to the darkened outlook from which so many suffer? My first clear impression on reading the textbook for the first time was that with this book and the Bible to guide him a man might not only be his own parson and his own doctor, but that he would be better able to look after his own spiritual and physical welfare than anybody else could do for him. And a closer acquaintance with the whole subject has proved to me that such is indeed the case.

In Christian Science it is literally a case of working out your own salvation, with a very definite hope of success in so doing, because you are working with an explanation of the Scriptures that opens up for you the right way to think on all important questions to do with life and God and man, and not wandering in a kind of fog of guessing, or blind belief. In a poem entitled "The Two Voices," Tennyson gives us a realistic example of the kind of conversation that goes on in many people's minds. In this instance it is the poet's own mind, and it looks as if his whole outlook on life is to be determined by the argument to which he finally gives his assent. The first voice suggests to him,

"Thou art so full of misery Were it not better not to be?"

and supports this morbid suggestion with all kinds of subtle arguments as to the ultimate desolation and decay attendant upon all human aspirations.

Just as it seems that the poet's resistance to these suggestions is beginning to flag, a second voice presents itself and urges him to be of better cheer, giving as the reason for this the existence of "a hidden hope." On this advice the poet's wailing faith warms once more into a hopeful assurance of the reality and permanence of the good and true, and the poem ends with these words:—

"I marvel'd how the mind was brought
To anchor by one gloomy thought;
And therefore rather I made choice

To commune with that barren voice,
Than him that said, 'Rejoice! Rejoice!'"

WEIGHING PROBABILITIES

Now this kind of weighing up of probabilities goes on all the time with most of us, and the Bible says that as a man thinketh in his heart so is he. Some listen to one voice and some to another, and whereas those who see in the present, wonderful opportunities of proving the power of love, and willingness to serve, to overcome every obstacle, we see others who are seemingly brought to anchor by the gloomy thoughts which they feel powerless to resist or even argue against. To both kinds the message of Christian Science may prove an angel unawares, for the simple reason that it teaches how to analyze the actual character and bona fides of all kinds of thoughts as they address us, and, mind you, we alone are responsible for the thoughts that we entertain.

Christian Science teaches that your whole outlook on life, whether gloomy or bright, sad or joyous, healthy or unhealthy, turns on what you believe about God. There are those who hold it to be the highest form of reverence to attribute to God entire responsibility for all the discordant things that are going on in the world—the war, famine, disease, and so on. These things they often hold to be evidence of God's displeasure with His erring creation, just as in the seventeenth century it was customary to describe the chalk mark on the doors of infected houses as "God's mark."

I think people who feel this way about God are bound to feel unhappy. And yet such people would very likely admit that God must be the supreme intelligence of the universe; only they would say that His justice and mercy are things at present beyond our comprehension, and so the best that one can do is to "rest and expatiate in a life to come." Here Christian Science draws attention to the one thing lacking and supplies it, that is, a present right understanding of God's essential nature and man's relation to Him. The first Teacher of Christianity said, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee—the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." We shall not therefore find life eternal by pleading that the things of God are beyond our comprehension.

SPIRITUAL GOVERNMENT

What has Christian Science to tell us about God? In the study of Christian Science we find law to be the very essence of God's nature, and that is why the term Principle is so often used for God, because Principle is that which underlies and maintains all true law. Christian Science teaches that in reality all true law is contained in and manifested through that trinity of good, Life, Truth, and Love; and that the domain in which this law operates and to which mortals must turn in order to realize its benevolent activity, is expressed in the words Mind, Spirit, and Soul. Thus we have in Christian Science seven synonymous terms, the right understanding of which will help the human mind to apprehend and draw near to God: Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love. This variety of terms is the greatest possible help to the seeker after the truth, for it does not confine his thoughts about God within the limits of corporeal personality, but allows them to extend on all sides, like the branches of a tree which has been moved into the open and is no longer confined within walls or cramped for lack of space.

As the idea of God as divine Principle, eternally unchangeable and wholly impartial, dawns upon his thought, the seeker will begin to experience a sense of emancipation from his old-limiting habits of thought, for he is awakening to an impersonal sense of omnipresent law. We must never lose sight of the fact that lawlessness in human affairs has always been responsible for the greatest tyranny and cruelty, and this illustrates the fact that every manifestation of evil is evidence of the absence or negation of law. Conversely, we have the Psalmist's spiritual insight, reassuring us with the promise: "Great peace have they that love thy law; and nothing shall offend them." Reformers, those who worship God in spirit and in truth, find wonderful power and freedom from limitation when impelled to some new and forward step in the cause of freedom. They seem to become imbued with the fact upon which Christian Science insists, that in the spiritual reality there is no limitation, and all things are governed by a law that is wholly good. Let us begin now to think of this Spirit, not as something abstract or shadowy, but as the imperishable substance of all real being. First, however, we must know how to deal with the testimony presented in opposition to this idea—the evidence of the five senses to the effect that the basis of all substance and life is matter.

STUFF OF DREAMS

Is it, then, necessary to investigate the evidence of the five senses? Well, this is the very thing that scientific thinkers have been engaged on for so long past, but it is not, even in the light of modern research, possible to say for matter more than this—that it is of itself nothing, definite, but only seems to be the substance, life, and intelligence of everything.

Professor Fiske has laid down the proposition in these words: "All the qualities of matter are what the mind makes them, and have no existence as such apart from the mind." A statement such as this should be, perhaps, supported by illustration, but I do not see how it would be possible to cover the ground this way without taking up too much time. But let us take one very simple illustration. That fur coat which, if you are fortunate enough to possess one, you put on on a cold day. You say my coat has warmed me or has kept me warm. But what about the wax model in the shop window on which you first saw it? Was that affected one degree, either way by the coat? No; so it must be your thought about the coat and its effect upon your body which has kept you warm. Separated from the thought, both the coat and the body would be cold and inanimate, and so it must be thought and not the overcoat that warms the body and keeps it warm. Illustrations, all pointing to the fact that matter is just what mortal mind, or the mind of the senses, thinks of it and nothing else, and that the five senses are in a constant state of self-deception regarding it, might be multiplied almost indefinitely, but this one instance will suffice to illustrate the proposition in a general way.

And so it is easy to understand the dilemma of the Chinese philosopher who, dreamed one night that he was a butterfly, and on awaking to find himself a man, exclaimed, "And now I know not whether I was then a man dreaming I was a butterfly or whether I am now a butterfly dreaming I am a man." To-day, as the result of centuries of experience, humanity does perhaps feel a little more sure about the reality of the spiritual unseen and of man's true destiny, but whenever we revert in thought to matter as the basis of life, substance, and intelligence, then the Chinaman's doubts concerning the reality of his being are liable to become ours too.

HOW TO CORRECT MISTAKES

Does Christian Science then teach that we can immediately stop eating and drinking and being clothed materially? By no means; but it does teach that in order to find our true spiritual selfhood we must correct, as fast as it is practical to do so, every mistaken material thought about life and substance. We can only correct mistakes when we see them as mistakes, and—Christian Science teaches that the remedy for all the ills that flesh is heir to is to be found in the truth, lived and practiced. In making proof of this to the best of our ability and step by step, we begin to feel a wonderful confidence and joy in the fact that here at last is the pathway of true Science. In finding the truth regarding any given set of conditions, the starting point in Christian Science is that there is only one creator, God,—the one Mind. All things real are therefore thoughts or ideas emanating from this Mind, and inasmuch as the Mind which is God must be perfect, His ideas cannot be less than perfect. Mistaken notions cannot alter this fact, but the fact itself dispels the mistaken notion. Napoleon one said to one of his ministers: "Do you know what I admire most in the world? The powerlessness of material force. In the long run, the sword is conquered by an idea."

Napoleon in this instance may have only meant to convey that human thinking was superior to human force, and so it often is, but Christian Science teaches that those thoughts which are endowed with true power that attribute to the divine Mind, God, all power, all substance, all intelligence, all life. It is not strange, when you come to think of it, that such thoughts as these should always have accomplished wonders, because being an impartation of the one infinite Mind, or Spirit, which created the universe and keeps it going, they must reflect the Life and Truth and Love of which according to the Scriptures that Spirit is composed. Herein lies their irresistible power. Needless to say, this divine power has been always in the world, but it has remained for Christian Science to present it in a form by which men may avail themselves of it now, systematically and scientifically, and thus receive, as it were, the needed authority to give the lie to evil, to heal disease in every form, and to correct the mistaken thoughts which are responsible for all the trouble. It is upon the right thinking that is being done now—that the salvation of the world from all its unhappiness and diseases depends.

CHRISTIAN WARFARE

It is a noticeable thing that whereas a mistake is in itself a passive, inert, mindless thing, it is quite otherwise with the maker of a mistake. He is generally in the attitude of trying to shield it or in some other way to justify it. Look at the lengths to which the human mind once committed to materialism has gone. It has broken all the commandments in order to establish its mistaken sense about matter, matter's claim to be substance, its supposed power to enrich and to make great or to destroy. To-day we have the vision of the nations,

"... groping on their way,
Stumbling and falling in disastrous night,
Yet hoping ever for the perfect day."

The suffering involved in the present war would seem well nigh unendurable to some people, were it not for this hope, the hope that in the crumbling away of materialism there will come the promised dawn of the Christ-idea in human consciousness. And so, even now, we tread more lightly in the prospect of a better sense of peace, of freedom, and of perfection than the world has yet enjoyed. But we have had to learn to be willing to fight this war, to make the sacrifice of those things that we had come to regard as ours by right, and even to surrender for the time being our reluctance to being involved in methods of material violence. These latter are the outward evidences of a condition of thought which the Master himself said was not to be feared. We must never lose sight of this fact, however, that it is the active, alert, spiritual thinking of soldier and civilian alike that will finally expose the fallibility of mere human will seeking its own ends and the futility of all misdirected efficiency. This is the Christian warfare so vividly described by St. Paul. Another illustration of this warfare is found in the Old Testament where Jacob is recorded as having wrestled with a man till break of day. Science and Health explains that Jacob was really wrestling with error and that he was "struggling with a mortal sense of life, substance, and intelligence as 'existent in matter with its false pleasures and pains' (p. 308). And you will remember that he did not give up the struggle until he had received a blessing from it. This opponent, who in Jacob's case was called a man, has been allegorically depicted by a modern writer as endowed with power to assume different forms at will, one moment appearing as a dragon and the next as a farnyard duck. This illustrates the different forms that error may assume in our struggle for freedom. But Christian Science shows that evil has no more basic reality when it appears as some malicious or diabolical thought or action than when it takes the form of some apparently harmless, domestic, or commonplace habit. We must be very watchful, however, to avoid either self-complacency or self-condemnation, which can only weaken the spiritual armament.

"THE DAY BREAKETH"

Is this the key to the whole question of the healing in Christian Science? Yes, it is the victory over self that wins the day in every case, and Christian Science teaches that the way in which this victory is won is not by force or human will, but by persistent and consecrated effort to lift one's thought above the fog of material sense until the unreality of matter and all its claims to power dawn upon the thought, and God, good, is seen as the only power. Even when it seems almost impossible, through pressure of circumstances, to realize the unreality of matter, one may yet reject its claims and cling steadfastly to the fact of God's aliveness while waiting for proof of the power of good over evil. It is then that "the day breaketh" for the wrestler, and it is then that angels, or spiritual thoughts, come and minister to him. Paul's advice to us to think constantly of the things that are true, honest, pure, of good report, is not merely kind encouragement. It has behind it his scientific understanding of these things that accompany the true idea, and are the very substance of the things we hope for. As we accustom ourselves to dwell on these things we are really shutting out thoughts of the body and material desires and admitting the healing Christ into our consciousness. This point of view finds no place in those human systems that are based on material premises variously described as materia medica, hypnism, suggestive therapeutics, spiritualism, or theosophy, and that is why Christian Science has nothing in common with them. Christian Science does not teach that mortals can be made perfect, but, on the contrary, that perfection appears in our lives in proportion as thought awakens from its dream of mortality. "I shall be satisfied," said the Psalmist, "when I awake, with thy likeness."

THE WAY-SHOWER

Since the time when Paul gave utterance, to that poignant cry, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" and found the answer in his own words, "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord," the world's hope has centered on Jesus. Even though his life and mission have been but imperfectly understood and their practical value dissipated by personal idolatry, this hope has never been completely extinguished. Christ Jesus means more to the world to-day than ever before in human history, and Christian Science explains him better. His remedy for Adam, the material type of manhood whose substance is matter, was the Christ, or spiritual type of manhood whose substance is Mind, God. In his own life and example he exemplified perfectly this spiritual type, proving its dominion over every form of material belief. He healed all kinds of disease, raised the dead; removed every sense of material limitation attached to supply, substance, time, and space. But you need to be watchful here lest that old thought of defiled personality comes stealing in to drug you and put you to sleep. A right understanding of his works and words will give you the key to all your troubles, but misunderstanding, they can avail you little. He said, "No man cometh unto the Father, but by me," and it still is so.

RIGHT DISCRIMINATION

Do you not see that Jesus was the first to teach mankind how to discriminate between life as defined by the five senses and Life spiritually discerned? "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," he told Nicodemus. He first laid down for mankind which one of these two propositions was the truth about life. His whole life and example were in demonstration of the fact that man exists to express Mind and not matter. His atonement was his proof of man's at-one-ment with Mind,—I and my Father are one,—not God watching from afar, but the divine Mind and ideas, present, inseparable, harmonious, eternal now. As the good shepherd he presents to us the right idea of brotherhood. Although the authorized version represents him as saying, "There shall be one fold, and one shepherd," the actual words in the original are, "There shall be one flock and one shepherd; in other words, all God's children will recognize and follow the Christ—the true model of manhood. As the vine, he is the stem from which all our faith is derived."

As the door, his example is the only entry into Life, Truth, and Love. Evil presented itself to him boasting, threatening, appealing, fawning, lying, arguing. He saw through it every time. He was never once deceived. Is not that alone a wonderful thing to contemplate—never to have been taken in? And he said that we might share his Christpower, profit by what he taught, and do as he did. But have we? No; for the simple reason that we have not really tried to think as he thought, but instead have identified his personality. We have not condemned sense testimony so long as the world did not call it sin, but on the contrary we have hugged it close. Did he ever do that? He always rebuked it and rejected it. Even on the cross he refused the narcotic thrust in front of him with the suggestion that he might gain relief that way. In all circumstances he refused to know evil in any form. The question is how may we learn to do the same and escape from the sufferings that material sense testimony has brought us. Well, here is some advice from the Bible on this very point. "Every man that hath this hope, in him (Christ Jesus) purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

And now let me read you this passage from Science and Health (page 242): "There is but one way to heaven, harmony, and Christ in divine Science shows us this way. It is to know no other reality—to have no other consciousness of life than good, God and His reflection, and to rise superior to the so-called pain and pleasure of the senses." Here, surely, is the true explanation of those two much-misunderstood terms, prayer and fasting. Prayer, not a selfish request, but the dwelling in the consciousness of good; and fasting, not food rationing, but self-abnegation and the proof of man's superiority to all material sense testimony.

criminate between life as defined by the five senses and Life spiritually discerned? "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," he told Nicodemus. Prayer, not a selfish request, but the dwelling in the consciousness of good; and fasting, not food rationing, but self-abnegation and the proof of man's superiority to all material sense testimony.

THE DESOLATE HOUSE

In his impressive lament over Jerusalem, which in those days exemplified the sum total of material pride and sensuality, the Master concluded with the words, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate." The desolate house—that structure of nonsense erected by the five senses—is being seen at its real worth as a home.

It is not very difficult to point out the many fallacies and hopeless inconsistencies of material existence, and this is being continually done by writers who have the skill and the courage to undertake the task; but as a rule they leave the reader about where they found him, with perhaps an added sense of the hopelessness of it all.

Are we to be content with these fallacies and inconsistencies, and while laughing at them try to make the best of them? I used to think, until Christian Science showed me otherwise, that this was the only thing one could do. My idea of making the best of the conditions that we see, resolved itself into an effort to help on the work of the hospitals, and for some time I took an active part in the management of two hospitals, one very large one in London and one very small one in the country; and this work proved in many ways a blessing to me which I shall never regret. But I am free to confess to you that when I saw in Christian Science the truth about the healing method of our Lord, and the scientific character of the hope that accompanied it, and contrasted this with the purely material system of doctoring in vogue to-day, a system which relies wholly on drugs and surgery, and leaves the moral and spiritual aspect of life out of its calculations, I could no longer feel satisfied that helping on this work was the best I could do for myself or for my neighbor.

SCIENTIFIC REFORM

However much we may hear of the advances made in surgical skill and ingenuity during the war, I noticed in a recent review the claim that surgery and medicine have been reform in the period,—we must also reflect that had the teachings of the Master been received more into men's hearts in place of the lip service of the past, the need for all this would never have arisen. The periodical agitations for a Department of Health, etc., would be well enough, if the institution of such a department had for its main object the education of the people out of unclean and insanitary practices, which are generally the result of ignorance or sloth. One can readily see that all efforts directed toward a cleaner, healthier outlook must act directly on the welfare of the whole community. But if these efforts are to take the form of subjecting the community to the rigid requirements formulated by the adherents of a certain favored system of medicine, whose methods have always been more experimental than scientific, is it not probable that the price paid for any improvements so gained will be a still deeper materialism, and will not the body, fettered by every kind of restriction, be more than ever the master of the man? It is so easy to invent panaceas, to turn men into germ carriers and put spectacles on children, but as this process goes on those words, "Take no thought for your life," "Consider the lilies of the field," "Behold the fowls of the air," "Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?" seem to become so faint that men laugh to think that anyone could talk of applying such ideas to modern conditions. Oh, let us wake up! These never were transcendental ideas, but always the most practical advice ever given to men. How can we let ourselves be put to sleep by materialism in this way? One well-known writer says, "I have never yet met a man who was quite awake. How could I have looked him in the face?"

Christian Science is waking men and women everywhere to the true meaning of freedom. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

This is not a time to loosen our grasp on the truth, but rather to get a clearer understanding of Principle, through the active demonstration of its reforming and healing power. The Christian Scientist does not resist social or hygienic reform,—he helps it on; but he also knows that any reform that does not have as its main desideratum the growth, expansion, and freedom of individual character can never succeed. That is why Christian Science is the greatest movement for reform that is in the world to-day. Its organization exists solely in order that this healing truth may reach all mankind and bless them, and not in order that it may have a great roll of members.

SPREADING THE MESSAGE

Those who join this organization are these who, perceiving the significance of the message, see also the importance of doing their share in the spread of it. Apart from that, the organization offers to its members no advantages which the public may not freely enjoy. The church services, its reading rooms, and its lectures are open free to all seekers after the truth. Church membership is not the thing that is going to save mankind, but a pure religion, the religion of Christ Jesus—unfettered by creed or dogma—a religion which depends for its establishment on earth on the good which its followers are able to demonstrate as the result of its teaching.

Some years before Science and Health was written, Henry D. Thoreau wrote these words, "When one man has reduced a fact of the imagination to be a fact of his understanding, I foresee that all men will at length establish their lives on that basis." This prophecy is finding its fulfillment in Christian Science. That fact of the imagination—the kingdom of God—has been reduced by one woman to be a fact of her understanding, for she has set forth its demonstrable Science in a book, and from that time on the number of those who have established their lives on that basis has gone on year by year in continually increasing ratio.

This book is the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," to which all may have access either by purchase or by borrowing it at one of the many Christian Science reading rooms. There are many well-authenticated cases of healing of all kind of disease as the result of studying this book, often when the only motive for doing so was despair of finding a remedy elsewhere.

SAVED BY HOPE

There is no religion so full of hope in the present as Christian Science, and Paul says, "We are saved by hope." I have tried to show in this lecture something of what that hope is, and how that by its clear and logical statement of the nothingness and insubstantiality of matter and allness of the Mind that is God, Christian Science is giving to the world the only teaching that can really save it from the wreck of materialism.

You have learned to-day something of the method by which Christian Science is unraveling the tangle which has resulted from a blind acceptance of sense testimony, and how it is revealing to man his real freedom; and you have perhaps gained some new light on the fact that Christ Jesus, the Way-shower for all time and for all mankind, exemplified this method in his own life and works. We are now able to see what the denial of material sense testimony as he denied it, and obedience to the voice of Principle as he obeyed it, will mean for us. It will mean doing the works that he did and thus sharing in some measure the deep joy of his experiences.

It is probable that I have not dealt with all the questions that some would have liked to ask me, but to those who still have questions unanswered I say, as Philip said to Nathaniel, the questioner, "Come and see"—in other words, take our textbook and study it for yourselves.

VICTORIA'S TESTING TIME IN LAST WEEK OF DRIVE

Citizens Should Celebrate Peace by Buying Another Bond to Bring Home the Boys; City Kept Up Loan Pace on Saturday

"Let every citizen celebrate the coming of peace by buying another Victory Bond," said one of the Loan officials at noon today, when the results of Saturday's canvass in Greater Victoria were announced as amounting to $339,650. This brings the city's total subscription, exclusive of the investments, amounting to over $1,000,000, of certain public administrative bodies up to over $3,000,000. The task ahead, therefore, is the raising of $1,000,000 this week, and the local canvassers set out this morning with renewed enthusiasm, spurred on by a competition inaugurated between the various bond-selling teams.

The figures for the close of canvass Saturday as compared with those on the corresponding day last year are as follows:

1913.	1912.
Saturday.	Saturday.
Canvassers ..... $106,500	Canvassers ..... $72,850
Banks ..... 237,750	Banks ..... 42,150
$339,650	$115,000
	$2,273,105

The 1913 figures do not include the subscriptions of the Provincial Government and municipalities of Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich, which amount to over $1,000,000.

The Big Job is Ahead.

"The big job is ahead," said R. F. Taylor, Island Chairman for the Victory Loan, this morning. "The most crucial time for Canada's greatest financial effort will be the last week of the drive," he pointed out. "It is for the Dominion to top off her glorious war record with full subscription to the fund which will bring home the boys who made a victorious peace possible. The need for money was never greater than now. The Dominion has only six days to add one more victory to her already long record of achievements. Victoria is given a last opportunity to manifest in its most practical form, that spirit of patriotism which has not hesitated in the last four awful years, to give all that peace might come only with victory."

Large Investments.

Saturday large subscriptions were considerably swelled by the following large investments: by well-known local concerns: B. C. Land and Investment Agency, $15,000; Cameron Lumber Company, $10,000; Brackman-Ker Milling Co. (Western Canada Flour) $5,000; H. W. Johns-Manville Co., $5,000.

Oak Bay Subscribers.

Steps are at present being taken by the municipality of Oak Bay, which hitherto has not subscribed to the present bond issue, to make a substantial investment in the Loan. The total investments to be made by the municipalities will amount to about $450,000 on this occasion.

Jews Subscribe.

The Jewish population is investing liberally in the Loan and is responding generously to the solicitations of Isaac Waxstock, President, and J. Rose, Vice-President, of the B'nai B'rith Society. Already these gentlemen have sold $12,400 worth of bonds, and they anticipate a total subscription of $15,000. When every adult Jew has subscribed, the Jewish section of the community will be entitled to an Honor Emblem of its own.

Though when Chinatown entered the Victory Lists, Harry Hastings, in charge of that section of the community for the loan, was a little fearful of the results of his canvass, he now confidently expects to pass last year's total by some $10,000.

Honor Emblems.

Additional names in the Honor List of Victoria and district business houses, issued late Saturday indicate that the number is steadily increasing as the drive draws to a conclusion. The committee announces that all the 95 per cent. honor list has gone into the 100 per cent. class of patriotic subscribers.

Accompanying is the list of new firm names not hitherto published in the Times, which reached their 100 per cent. quota Saturday.

Senior List.

November 9—H. & P. Lee, Richardson & Stephens, Fletcher Bros. Music Store, Plimley's Bicycle Store, Vancouver Portland Cement Co. Staff, Begg Motor Co., Saanich Municipal Hall (Office Staff), Columbia Paper Co., Ltd., Western Grocery Co., New England Market Co.

Junior List.

November 5—Nag Paint Co. (Firm and Office Staff), Bowes Drug Store, Dominion Educational Association.

At the meeting of the Dominion Educational Association, to be held at the Normal School, Ottawa, commencing November 25, Mr. Alexander Robinson, Superintendent of Education for British Columbia, will speak on the subject of Uniform Textbooks for Canadian schools. Dr. Robinson will also make the report for this province on educational progress.

Protect Seed.—Regulations designed to protect seed in Canada are promulgated in the latest issue of The Canada Gazette which arrived here yesterday. The order is as follows: "On and after the first day of November, 1913, the importation into Canada of seeds of any or all kinds of clovers, grasses, vetches, rape, other forage plants, field root and garden vegetables in lots of ten pounds or more which are unfit for seedling purposes under the terms of this order, is hereby prohibited."

Saturday's Tag-Down.—The committee in charge of the I. O. D. E. collection in aid of the war fund, on Saturday were deeply appreciative of the courtesy of the Victory Loan Committee in waiving their plans so as not to interfere with the street collection. Despite the inclement weather the taggers worked indefatigably at their posts, many new helpers coming forward to assist in place of the regular taggers who were suffering with the "flu." The accounting committee who had charge of the receipts last evening were: Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Major W. H. Nelson, Messrs. Neame and Cooke. Members of the Field-Comforts committee, Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. Cecil Cookson and Mrs. J. P. Macfarlane, with the Municipal Chapter regent, Mrs. Albert F. Griffiths, worked indefatigably throughout the day and Mrs. Charles F. Gardiner, Mrs. Harvey and Miss Thain served light refreshments to the taggers.

GRACIOUS TRIBUTE TO LATE LIEUT. INGLIS

Vancouver Province Adds Its Eulogy of Departed
Newspaperman

Eloquent tribute to the memory of Acting-Captain T. B. Inglis, whose lamented death was recorded in these columns recently, is paid in Saturday's issue of The Vancouver Daily Province as follows:

"Tidings, a few weeks ago, that Lieut. T. B. Inglis was a patient at No. 8 Hospital, France, suffering from a gunshot wound in the knee, had allayed for a space of time all fears as to his safety. Profound, therefore, was the shock at news of his death sustained by those in Vancouver and in Victoria who knew him and in knowing him loved and revered his sunny-hearted ways, his innate nobility and chivalry, and the keen sensitive intellect that sought expression in literary craftsmanship of a particularly fine order. Scholar and student, his record at London University was brilliant, his interest in all that was human, while travel in European highways and byways had brought him into contact with life in many phases and endowed him with comprehension of its problems. To him as to all his generation of fastidious, tender-hearted youth, war was in itself abhorrent, but as a weapon of right to be wielded to the bitter end."

Refused Safe Appointments.

"So staunch was he to the great brotherhood of those who fight and die together that even after being repeatedly gassed he refused offers of appointments that would have taken him out of the firing line, and chose weal or woe with the men he loved so well. Of a series of articles he had the honor of being commissioned to write for the British Government that on 'The New Soul of Canada' was translated into fewer than twenty-two foreign tongues. He loved the Canadian West, and was hoping to return to his home with his wife and little son of four, and later to resume the post as city editor of The Victoria Times, he has relinquished to enlist with the 11th C. M. R's."

Brother-in-law to the 47th Battalion in which he was acting captain at the time of his death. While residing in Vancouver in 1911-1912 he lived with his aunt, Miss A. L. Inglis. His brother, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Francis Inglis, of Stockton-on-Tees, is at present doing work for the British Government at Bergen, Norway."

Houghton, of Victoria, and one brother, Dr. A. W. Lehman, V. S., of Duncan.

Princess Alice Brings Bodies of Sophia Victims Southward

Juneau, Nov. 11.—Without a whistle or other sound save the "Let-go" command of her captain, a Canadian steamship quietly left here Saturday on a voyage the like of which no other vessel has left the Northland. Transferred from a palatial passenger ship to a veritable hearse, this vessel took south 153 bodies of the 343 human lives which were swallowed up in the icy waters of Lynn Canal when the Princess Sophia went down on Vanderbilt Reef on the evening of October 25.

This ship of sorrow was held for nearly ten days while bodies were being prepared. A few mourning loved ones and relatives were given passage to accompany the remains. No other passengers were allowed aboard.

Public memorial services were to have been held, but owing to the strict quarantine the exercises were postponed. Many old-time Alaskans were at the dock as the vessel left, and they presented a sad scene as they wept for the loss of victims with whom they had nursed trials in the early days.

The following bodies are to be landed at Seattle:

R., who has full charge of the arrangements regarding the handling of the bodies of the victims of the Sophia's disaster. The Alice left Juneau at 6 o'clock Saturday morning, and was expected here by noon to-day, but owing to bad weather all along the northern coast has been somewhat delayed. She was spoken at 5:20 this morning by the Triangle wireless operator and gave her position as being off Pine Island at 11:30 Sunday night. She will probably arrive here some time after 4 o'clock.

Due to-morrow.
The C. P. R. steamship Princess Alice, bearing the bodies of the victims of the Princess Sophia disaster, will reach Vancouver at 3:30 o'clock to-night, according to a statement issued this morning by Capt. J. W. Troup. The steamship is due to reach here to-morrow morning.

TIMELY RESCUE OF

HERSCHEL ISLAND

PATROL FROM ICE

Schooner is Crushed, and Men Scantily Clad Are Rescued by Whaleboat

CAPTAIN J. R. HADLEY BRINGS NARRATIVE

A few years ago throughout the whole of Canada was read with admiration and pride the story of how a Hersey-Morris West Mounted Police patrol had perished in making the journey from Fort McPherson through the treacherous pass, which forms the only link between the Mackenzie basin and the Yukon. That admiration and pride was stirred by the dauntless way in which they had fought their path through obstacles, to succumb at length to the forces of nature.

Brings First News.
A like fate, this summer, nearly befell the Herschel Island patrol. The news of this accident, which was nearly a tragedy, was brought outside by Capt. J. R. Hadley, of the Hersey-Morris supply schooner, the Polar Bear, who is now in Victoria. He received it at first hand from the rescuers of the patrol, two men named Alexander Allen and Gonzales, whom he took to Nome in the Polar Bear from Herschel Island. It is impossible for the news to have come out eastward, as the patrol lost the Government schooner, the Albatross, which was rescued in the manner stated below, they are now isolated on Herschel Island for the winter.

The patrol had been out in July under Inspector Phillips, so Capt. Hadley was informed, the statement being confirmed by a letter later, en route to Fort McPherson. The object was to obtain supplies for the coming winter. It being the opportunity to get in touch with the outer world, some of the scantly clad inhabitants had intrusted commissions to its members. One man had fifteen hundred dollars coming to him, and with the forethought of an Ottawa Government, the remittance had been made by draft. This document not being negotiable in the Esquimaux and frontier posts, he had asked the patrol to cash it for him. Nothing occurred of particular moment on the journey to Fort McPherson, but coming back they had the adventure which nearly proved fatal. They worked their way out of the Mackenzie delta without encountering more than the usual obstacles of river navigation, and had pushed their way westward along the coast line to Key Point when a sudden storm arose.

Overwhelmed in Ice.
It was one of those unexpected gales which test the seamanship of the experienced Arctic navigator. Before the occupants of the boat could take any adequate steps to prevent being driven among the pinnacles of drift ice, which at that time of the year crunch and grind their way onward in the Arctic Sea, the little vessel was overwhelmed. The men sprang on to the ice scantily clad, without a moment to save anything. They had barely jumped from their decks on to the slippery ice when the vessel was crushed, and all its contents lost.

Then began a painful arduous journey for six miles on moving ice. They eventually reached land, however, destitute, clad in unbecoming almost frozen. Their condition was indeed pitiable. Providence, however, in the shape of a whale-boat, manned by Gonzales and Allen, came to their relief. One of the members of the patrol was noticed from the whale-boat, a solitary figure in a singular spot, and the whale-boat put in to ascertain what had happened.

The whale-boat then effected a rescue of the patrol, who had lost everything of their own supplies for the approaching winter, and also the commissions executed by them. Gonzales and Allen took them to Herschel Island. Later Capt. Hadley helped the rescuers to Nome, and so heard the story at first hand.

The line of the parade will be as follows: Starting at Yates Street and Blanshard Street at 3 o'clock, thence along Yates to Douglas, along Douglas to Pandora, along Pandora to Government, along Government to View, along View to Douglas, along Douglas to Fort, along Fort to Government, along Government to the Parliament Buildings, and thence to Beacon Hill Park.

The following committee is in charge of the exercises at the Park: Frank Sell, Chairman, assisted by Mrs. Miller, Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. MacDonald, Pahey and Mrs. R. W. Hannington. The committee in charge of the bonfire at Beacon Hill, at 4 o'clock this afternoon consists of: Alderman Andrew, Chairman; Carl Pennday and A. F. Purdy.

The committee appointed to take charge of the Publicity consisted of: Thomas Walker, Alderman Sargent and J. H. Fletcher, Alderman Porter and Peden were appointed a committee to arrange transportation for the band and sailors of H. M. S. Lancaster. The meeting was presided over by His Worship Mayor Todd, and George I. Warren was appointed secretary of the general committee.

Make No Speeches.

It was unanimously decided at the meeting that there would be no speeches made at the celebration, the whole time being given over to a general celebration in which everybody might take part.

Military Conspicuous.

Much to the chagrin of some of the men employed at District Depot Headquarters at the Central Building, and the other military offices an extreme rush of business greeted the morning celebration, and for the morning they had to carry on with their ordinary duties, although many of the men found it almost an impossibility to devote their usual attention to the work. Unlatterly late parties gave up the effort and gathered their hats and coats and left to join the exuberant throng quickly gathering in the streets. Many of them assembled around The Times' windows to see the latest bulletins and led the crowd outside in a series of cheers for everyone connected with the war.

Others wended their way to the Veterans' Victory Bond Dugout on the corner of Fort Street and Government Street, assured of a big celebration there. The crowd also paraded Government Street, and chose the Dugout to let off the fireworks and to give vent to their spirits. The soldiers had a special supply of fireworks, and these added with those the civilians were setting off caused the corner at one time to appear as if the building and its contents had been blown up by the mass of smoke that enveloped it.

An extra table was put in the office to accommodate the big rush of business that the soldiers were expecting, and early this morning there was promise that it was needed. The "barriers" outside were entreated the crowd through a megaphone to "line up now with your dollars, and bring 'em home quickly." Sailors with leave and veterans were fraternizing in the highest of spirits along the streets, and the sailor rushed into the office with a bill in his hand demanding "one Victory Bond quick." Others were affected in a different way by the tidings, and one veteran who a few minutes before was a leading spirit in the celebrations which were quickly working up, made a sudden retreat and evidently with the memories of his friends or relations who had sacrificed their lives on the fields of France in the war, he had taken part in a theatre of war, where they still see some fighting the news that the hostilities in Europe have ceased was greeted as a practical announcement of a final peace, so far as the European situation is concerned, and the men were eager for a celebration. The 16th Infantry Brigade was organized for a parade to join the general parade in the afternoon, and the men were polishing their kit and decorating for the occasion, as they do when the drafts leave for overseas. The band of the 26th Brigade was warned for the big parade to share the heavy work that they expected during the celebrations at Beacon Hill.

Navy Out Too.

Officers and men of the Lancaster were in town early this morning to take part in the general rejoicings. Never was liberty more eagerly sought than by the sailors who were calling to mind the similar rejoicings simultaneously taking place in England. "Wouldn't it like to be in London to-night," was the remark one sailor was frequently heard to address to a comrade who was anything but a stranger with the town in the smoke. Preparations were early made for the band of the Lancaster to take part in the general demonstration in which the men themselves also were keen on joining.

Convalescents Celebrate.

Major Bapty gave permission for the men at the Hospital to be present in the big parade and with his adjutant, Lieutenant J. B. Manning, Captain King of the District Depot, and the energetic worker for all celebrations, for returned men, Sergeant King, was endeavoring to obtain enough automobiles for every man at the hospital to take part in the big parade. A large percentage of the men at the hospital are either permanent cripples or still recovering from the wounds which are in such a condition that they are unable to march side by side with the celebrating crowd as they swung lustily through the streets of Victoria when a similarly enthusiastic crowd were on hand with flags and decorations as they had to-day to clear them out of the way.

All the men at the hospital, however, were in good enough condition to stand automobiles. The excitement ran high among the convalescents when the big news reached them and they greeted it with rousing cheers.

At the Hospitals.

At St. Joseph's and the Jubilee Hospitals where soldiers are waiting operations and just recovering, together with the worst cases from overseas, are treated, there were several soldiers who were in too serious a condition to take part in the rejoicings. These able to take part were not over-looked, and autos were provided for some extent in the elated spirits of the cheering populace. One returned man will have cause to remember the great day of which he will know but little until the celebrations have practically subsided, for while the crowd was parading the streets waving flags, cheering and generally demonstrating their enthusiasm at the cessation of hostilities as the forerunner of what will be generally acknowledged as the great day in history, he was oblivious to all that was going on, in a dead silence, a somber, pathetic administered on the operating table.

A Permanent Memorial.

Captain A. E. Jones, a retired officer and a veteran of the Reil Rebellion, was around town to-day while the crowds were excited with the good news, with a petition to make a permanent memorial of the world-wide struggle. The petition was addressed to the Hon. John Oliver, as Premier of British Columbia and read as follows:

"We the undersigned citizens of the fighting port of Victoria respectfully request that you immediately authorize the planting of a Victory Maple tree in the Parliament Square, as a token of the thanks of the citizens of the world to Almighty God for the victory of the Allied armies in the Great War."

One petition was placed in the Dugout, another a J. O. Dunford's office on Government Street, in addition to the one Captain Jones himself was circulating. Many signatures were obtained to the petition.

VESSLS OF NEW TYPE ARE LAUNCHED

Steel Steamships Western Ally and Edenton Put Afloat at Seattle

Seattle, Nov. 11.—Inaugurating the steel ship launchings for November, two Seattle plants on Saturday launched vessels of a different type of construction than any previously built here.

The first craft to take to the water was the steamship Western Ally, a distinctly new type, constructed by the Ames Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company, and known as the Ames type of ship. This vessel is constructed on more refined lines than the previous vessels of the 3,800-ton style, she being sharper at the bow and has a slightly greater draft than her predecessors at the plant.

The other launching occurred at the Skinner & Eddy No. 1 plant. This latter ship was the Edenton, first of the new 3,800-ton design, which differs from the now famous Skinner & Eddy 3,800-ton type, in that instead of being a well-deck freighter, the new ship is a shelter-deck type, containing three decks and a larger carrying capacity. She is the thirty-sixth product of the Skinner & Eddy plant, and the forty-fourth ship from No. 1 plant.

The Western Ally Ames' contribution, was the eleventh craft launched by this concern, nine of which are in the service of the shipping board. She was christened by Mrs. H. J. Rahvala, wife of General Superintendent Rahvala, of the Ames Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company.

Largest Yet.

The steel freighter Edenton is the largest ship constructed and launched here under direct contract with the United States shipping board. In spite of her extra tonnage and the fact that 225 tons more of steel was required, the Edenton was launched fifty-three days after her keel was laid. This is the usual time in which the Skinner & Eddy yards have turned out the smaller type of shipping board freighter.

Seven Others Building.

Though the first vessel of the type to be launched in Seattle, the Skinner & Eddy Corporation has seven sister ships of the Edenton under construction.

The new ship has a capacity of 3,600 tons; length, 423.9 feet; beam, 54 feet; depth, 27.9 feet, and 28.6 feet to waterline when loaded. She will be equipped with 2,500-horse power engines and three Scotch marine boilers. The ship will be an oil burner.

CHARLIE SWAIN DIES FROM SPANISH "FLU"

Former Idol of Victoria Ball
Fans Was a Great Home
Run Getter

Charlie R. Swain, a former member of the Victoria Bees ball nine, has passed away in Oakland, California, from pneumonia, following an attack of Spanish influenza. Charlie was the idol of the Victoria fans and popular all along the Pacific Coast at the time the Bees were playing in the Northwest League. He was a great home run star, and holds the record for home runs in the Northwest League. He was only thirty-three years of age. He was at Stanford University for his college education and played on the "varsity" ball team there. Later he broke into professional ball as an outfielder on the Spokane club when old Matt Stanley was managing the Indians. Bob Brown secured him for Vancouver in 1910 and the big fellow played here for two seasons, and because of his long distance hits on the local field and elsewhere on the circuit he was "dubbed" Moose Swain by the fans. It was while with the Vancouver Beavers that he was sold to the Washington club of the American League. Swain remained two months in the big league and then returned to the Northwest. In 1912 he was a member of the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League, and just about the time of the accident in which he suffered the loss of a leg, he had been sold to Minneapolis in the American Association. In addition to playing with Vancouver he was also with Seattle and Tacoma, and at one time played with Butte when Big Chief Meyers, the Indian backstop, was catching for the Miners. Swain was one of the batting stars of the old Northwestern League.

Swain made many friends during his baseball career in the Northwest and his passing has caused widespread regret.

LEAGUE RUGBY GAME FINISHED IN A DRAW

One Try Each in Game Between V. I. A. A. and Foundation Company

A drawn game was the result of the League Rugby game between the V. I. A. A. and the Foundation Company at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday. The rain made the field greasy and hard for good combination, but the players were able to show that they are fast becoming experienced in the good old game, and the spectators who braved the elements were given a good exhibition. The three-quarter line of the V. I. A. A. team stood them in good stead, and the Foundation Company showed that they have a good selection that has only to get a little more practice to improve their knowledge of the handling code.

FRIENDLY SOCCER.

In the friendly soccer game on Saturday Yarrow and the Imperial Munition Board eleven played to a draw. A well-fought game was played between the Garrison and James Island, and resulted in a win for the soldiers by one goal to nothing.

LADIES' GOLF.

On Monday, November 18, the Victoria Golf Club will hold a ladies' putting, approaching and driving competition, for which prizes have been presented. A small entrance fee will go to the Red Cross Society.

PROS IN THE SERVICE TO BECOME AMATEURS

Victoria Sportsmen Have Before Discussed Union's Suggestion

There is a definite movement taking form in the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada to reinstate all professionals who have donned khaki. Thomas Boyd, of Winnipeg, President of the Union, said that he personally favored such action immediately. It had not been considered, he said, formally by the Union, but he had heard some expression of members favorable to it. In December the move would be considered if not before by the Union, as he thought possibly a vote by mail should be taken in view of the near approach of peace and possible demobilization.

The suggestion finds favor with Victoria representatives of the British Columbia Amateur Athletic Union, who have on several occasions since the war had the matter under discussion. "It is something we would be glad to see come about," said one sportsman this morning, "only we want to see it for all service men, to include the sailors as well as the soldiers."

LANCASTER MEN WON TROPHY FOR SOCCER

Gold Medals Offered by H. H. Brown for Return Game Soon

The soccer game Saturday between the Fragments from France and the men of H. H. Lancaster proved the big attraction of the day on Saturday, and the supporters on both sides were out in full force. The handsome cup which H. H. Brown donated at the last minute went to the Lancaster by virtue of their win by three goals to two, after a drawn game at half-time. Mayor Todd was on hand at the opening of the game and a collection taken during the half-time interval for the needy family of one of the Fragments team resulted in a sum of $60.00 being raised.

Return Game Soon

If a return game can be played before the men of the Lancaster leave the city, Mr. Brown has offered gold medals to each of the winning team in the next fixture, and if possible a match will be arranged for Wednesday. The line-up in Saturday's game was as follows:

Fragments—Bruce; Townsend and Gomm; Gammon, Pitts and Symmonds; Bowers, Freeman, Southin, Bloom and McIlroy.
Lancasters—Baker; Warrenner and Bird; Dixon, Dibbel and Lawson; Heath, Nicholas, Driscoll, Gulvin and Irvine.

Trombone—"Wot do we play next, Jim?"
Euphonium—"Arry Lauder—selection."
Trombone—"Struth! I've just played that!"

COLWOOD CLUB ONE OF "GOLF WAR BABIES"

Golf Critic Says Ancient Game Will Flourish When Boys Come Back

Of the Golf Clubs referred to as one of the "golf war babies" which have been organized since the outbreak of war the Colwood Club is mentioned by Ralph Keville, the well-known golf critic, who claims that golf will be one of the feature sports when the final peace is declared.

New golf courses literally by the score, he says will be laid out in the Dominion. As a matter of fact, even the war has not proved a deterrent, and many new links have been put in commission the past three or four years. Notable examples in Ontario have been Kingston, Midland, Carleton Place, Camp Borden, Weston, Britannia, Muskoka, Quebec—Grand Mere, Laval-sur-le-Lac, Granby, St. Margaret's Vale, St. Bruno and Senneville. Manitoba—Birtle, Assiniboine, Winnipeg—Canoe Club, Winnipeg, New Brunswick—Fredericton, Riverview, Moncton. Nova Scotia—Dartmouth, Digby, British Columbia—Colwood, Invermere, Cranbrook, Balfour, Alberta—Bowman, Calgary. Municipal golf links, Edmonton Golf Club (playing over the municipal links), Lethbridge, Saskatchewan—Kerbert, Qu'Appelle.

This makes a total of twenty-nine new clubs which can be rightly termed "golf war babies." In addition, Chatham, Ontario, is also "getting into the game," land having been secured for a course which will be laid out next year. If all this activity has been registered in war times, besides several courses enlarged from nine to eighteen holes, what will be the record when peace is declared and thousands of soldiers return who learned the game in Great Britain and have become enthusiastic about its many physical and mental possibilities and advantages?

BLIND SOLDIER STILL ENJOYS BILLIARDS

Makes Eight or Ten Breaks Through Extraordinary Sense of Touch

The wonderful way in which a blind soldier plays billiards is told in the Sporting Life. Sergeant-Major Shawl, a Yorkshireman, who was with Prince-cess Patricia's Regiment in the second battle of Ypres, when a severe wound deprived him of his eyesight, is the hero of this story.

Before blindness overtook him Sergeant-Major Shawl was a pretty good player and very fond of the game. When others were playing billiards at St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blind Soldiers, Shawl would lean forward in his seat and train his ear to the various contracts of the stroke, and by and by could actually hear the balls running on the bed of the table. His hearing in this way developed to an extraordinary degree, and eventually he could within a reasonable distance locate the balls.

With his hearing, his sense of touch developed until he could advance to the table and by means of his hands locate the exact position without touching the ball. Shawl could in this way "sense" the ball just as anyone in a dark room can tell by the "feel"

WAR PIGEONS TO BE BROUGHT TO VICTORIA

Writing on the feats that have been performed by pigeons on land and sea during the war, D. Douglas, of the Victoria Pigeon Fanciers' Society, mentions that he would like to see some of the local sportsmen donate a cup for the fastest bird over a distance of four hundred miles. There are several boys coming back from France, he states, who will bring back birds with them from the best lofts in England. Mr. F. Smith, of Parkdale, Saanich, one of the organizers of the Victoria Racing Pigeon Club, is in a clearing station somewhere in England awaiting his turn to come home. He has been wounded and is unfit for further service. During his stay in England he has collected a lot of Homers from some of the most noted breeders over there and is bringing them along to Victoria. W. Yates, of Carey Road, and G. W. Owen, who are overseas, intend bringing birds for stock purposes, as soon as they get their order for Canada.

Saved Two Lives.

Mr. Dougan encloses an account of how a Royal Air Force carrier pigeon was responsible for saving the lives of two flying officers. A Royal Air Force seaplane, engaged upon a submarine patrol over the North Sea, was compelled to descend about five miles from the rocky Scottish coast. A heavy sea was running at the time, and the machine was in momentary danger of being dashed to pieces. Realizing their peril the airmen released a pigeon at 4 p. m. with an urgent message requesting immediate help. Promptly at 4.22 the bird reached its loft, having traversed a distance of twenty-two miles in twenty-two minutes. The arrival of the pigeon was the first intimation the authorities received that anything was amiss, and assistance was immediately sent, resulting in the saving of the crew. When the relief party arrived, the airmen were clinging to the wreckage of the machine, which was rapidly breaking up.

GERMANY MUST BE WATCHED BY ALLIES
London Newspapers Urge Caution to Prevent Trick Being Played

London, Nov. 11.—In view of the uncertain position of the new German Government, anxiety is expressed by some London newspapers lest difficulties arise to prevent acceptance and enforcement of the armistice terms.

The pleas of some German papers that the Allies ought not to crowd Germany to the wall so hard that she would be unable to establish herself under a democratic Government tend to confirm suspicions in some quarters here that the transfer of power to the Socialists really is a subtle device by which the former Kaiser and the military party hope to obtain easier terms.

It is contended that if such a scheme were to gain even partial success it might easily lead to reaction in favor of the former autocrats.

The Times and the Daily Mail, for instance, recall that all Germany, including the Socialists, assented to the war, the failure of which alone leads them to abjure it now. They insist that the change in administration in nowise removes the necessity for reparation and restitution.

Allied with this view is doubt voiced by the Daily Express and elsewhere as to whether the armistice arrangement with the present Government would provide the guarantees demanded, as Chancellor Ebert's administration is conceived to be so fragile that it may fall at any moment.

In London Last Night.
London, Nov. 11.—Reports that the armistice between the Allies and Germany would be signed to-day, and that the terms would be given out called forth enormous crowds into the heart of London last night. The streets were packed with men, women and children and great crowds collected outside Buckingham Palace, the Government buildings, the Guildhall and the Lord Mayor's residence. There was much enthusiasm and vehicular traffic was brought to a standstill. It was a happy, good-natured throng.

As the hours passed and no news of the armistice arrived the crowd gradually dispersed.

Rejoiced Last Night but Watched Bulletin Boards for News
Paris, Nov. 11.—5.15 a.m.—France bore the first good news with the same jubilation and with which she had borne the victory of the last four years. Quiet joy was visible on every countenance last night but there was little outward expression.

The French public turned its attention to the extraordinary events in Germany. While a few had played in the streets and there was much singing of the Marseillaise, the great crowds in the boulevards paid most attention to the newspaper bulletin boards. Many people remained up until far into the night discussing the news in the cafes.

There was much skepticism concerning the German revolution. Many persons expressed the opinion that there was a trick somewhere to cheat the Allies of the fruits of victory and it was decided to postpone judgment until the armistice was actually signed.

The authorities had ordered the blueing cleaned from the street lamps and the street lights were lit from the arc lamps outside.

For the first time in years the boulevards presented an appearance of animation and liveliness, but there were no boisterous outbreaks. The people apparently were waiting for the bells to ring out the news of the close of the tragedy which has cost France 2,500,000 soldiers.

FRENCH PUSHED ON SOUTH OF MAUBEUGE UNTIL FIGHT ENDED
Paris, Nov. 11.—The Belgian frontier east of the forest of Treton, east of Avesnes, was reached by French troops, according to a War Office announcement to-day. Italian troops entered the town of Rocroi, less than two miles from the frontier.

Between Mezieres and Sedan French troops forced their way to the east bank of the Meuse between Lumes and Virigne.

The agreement follows: "East of the Forest of Treton we reached the frontier of Belgium. Italian troops entered Rocroi after hard fighting. French troops forced a passage of the Meuse between Lumes and Virigne."

CHICAGO EXCHANGES HAVE HOLIDAY TO-DAY
Chicago, Nov. 11.—The Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Stock Exchange and the Chicago Livestock Exchange, all declared a holiday to-day, and so too did the produce trade. The Livestock Exchange requested that to avoid congestion all shipments of livestock for Tuesday's trade here be withheld.

London, Nov. 11.—2.15 p.m.—Field-Marshal von Hindenburg has placed himself and the German army at the disposal of the new People's Government at Berlin, says a dispatch from the German capital by way of Copenhagen.

FIGHTING CONTINUED IN GERMAN CAPITAL SUNDAY MORNING
Basel, Nov. 11.—Fighting between revolutionary forces and Imperial troops was still going on in Berlin Sunday morning. The struggle, which began Saturday evening, broke out afresh at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

The heaviest fighting Sunday morning was in front of the Victoria and Bauer Cafe and the library of the Arsenal, near the Lustgarten, where officers, military cadets and boy scouts were fortified.

EVERY SHELL COUNTED.

Most people probably think that the gunners simply blaze away until they see the ammunition running low, then ask, "Oliver Twist-wise, for more." There never was a more mistaken idea. A practically exact account of the number of rounds of all calibres expended can be given. The harassed ammunition clerk has by no means a "cushy" job. On him devolves the responsibility of accounting for every shell, cartridge, fuse and tube that is sent up to his battery. His totals are checked daily and if there is a discrepancy of as much as one shell he will be sure to hear about it. The makers of defective ammunition can be traced if the defect shows itself on this side of the British line.—Tit-Bits.

COMMISSION SOON
MAY CONCLUDE WORK

Local Improvement Investigation Proceeds Steadily; Work Ahead

After several months of hard and painstaking work on the part of every member of the Local Improvement Commission it may now be expected that the end of their labors is in sight, as according to present calculations, all the by-laws, except those of a controversial nature, should be disposed of by the end of November.

Since the appointment of the Commissioners under the Victoria Relief Act, by reason of the powers vested in them, it has been possible for the Commissioners to eradicate numerous difficulties which have been thrown in the way of successive City Councils for years past. On numerous occasions the Council has voiced its appreciation of the good work that has been accomplished by the Commissioners, all of whom have given their services gratuitously.

On Monday next, November 18, at 2.45 in the afternoon the Commissioners will hold their first sitting in connection with the latest list of by-laws submitted to them for consideration. It is believed that, for the most part, these by-laws will be quickly disposed of and there are only a few of them affecting portions of some of the principal streets, such as Pandora Avenue, in connection with which there has been a good deal of controversy, which will prolong the business of the Commission.

VICTORY LOAN HELPED BUILD UP LARGE
STEEL INDUSTRY

British Forgings, Limited, Rose From Nothing Into Present Huge Plant

In industry of huge proportions, which has an important bearing on Canada's contribution to war effort, has sprung up within the past two years in an eastern city. It is the result of the nation-wide operations of the Imperial Munitions Board. It has been possible owing to the ability of the Canadian Government to make the necessary financial arrangements by advancing money out of the proceeds of the Victory Loan of 1917 and previous loan issues.

The British Forgings, Limited, was organized by the Imperial Munitions Board with the primary object of utilizing the very large quantity of shell scrap turnings from the machine shops working on shells in Canada and which were being shipped for commercial purposes to other countries. The Board wished to keep this material in the country and for the purpose of turning all shavings into steel billets for shell forgings, a plant of large dimensions was constructed. This was a steel melting house containing ten Heroult furnaces. The building is 610 feet long and 140 feet wide and was used in its construction.

Over 2,000 Employees. In addition to the melting house the plant has several other large buildings, the forge shop, the cutting and breaking shop and the saw shop, laboratories, a hospital, an administration building, the whole covering forty-nine acres of ground, with five miles of railway track. There are 2,000 employees. Then there is a secondary plant in another area where 500 workmen are employed.

This immense plant is engaged altogether on war work. It makes and forges the six-inch and the 9.2 shell casings, but the machining of the cases is done at other plants. Some forgings for ship-building operations are also turned out when required.

It was on February 1, 1917, that work on the plant was begun. On June 16 the first steel was made and on August 18 all of ten furnaces were in operation. They are melting 9,000 tons of scrap every month and in addition, thousands of rolled steel bars are being cut and broken into shell lengths and forged in the plant. The cost of plant exclusive of materials for shell cases, has been about $3,000,000. To date the revenue has exceeded $9,000,000. Since the commencement of operations the plant has turned out 338,763 steel billets and cut hundreds of thousands of six-inch shell cases from the rolled steel bars. Here are some of the details: The company has made 600,000 six-inch shell forgings from steel made in the plant, and in addition has produced 1,600,000 six-inch forgings from rolled steel blanks sent in by outside steel mills; and has also produced in its forging plant 75,000, 9.2 shells forging. The output of the plant to date is valued at about $9,000,000.

In the Melting House.

The melting house is naturally the scene of greatest interest because of the consumption of nearly 20,000 electrical horse-power. It is said to be one of the largest electrical steel plants in the world. Each of the ten Heroult furnaces consumes 2,000 horse-power twenty-four hours a day. The building has a capacity of 12,000 tons of steel turnings a month, and is equipped with two ten-ton Northern traveling cranes. The scrap is melted for four hours and then poured into moulds conforming to the shape of the billets. These are subsequently sent to the cutting and breaking shop. About twenty-five per cent of the billet is discarded. First a cut of half an inch is made in the billet and a ponderous hammer breaks the end off with one blow. The billet then goes to the forging shop, where it is heated to white heat in oil furnaces and pressed by 600-ton presses into shell form ready for shipment to machine shops for finishing.

This wonderful business was originated because of the needs of the war; but it is more than a war proposition.

When peace comes seventy-five per cent of the plant will be available for necessary peace work. The electrical steel plant is the nucleus of a great after-the-war activity. It will save wealth and retain within Canada work that would otherwise go to the States. The raw material in the shape of scrap steel, has, heretofore, been sent to the States. All this will now be retained for Canada, for the people have made this industry possible by subscribing to every war effort. The Victory Loan of 1917 and previous Loans made it possible for the Government to advance money for the building of the plant. The whole industry is vested in the Imperial Munitions Board for the British Government. The British Forgings, Limited, has, for President, Mr. James Wood, for years managing director of the Robert Simpson Co., and, for two years, a member of the Imperial Munitions Board. The Vice-President is Mr. Frank R. Miller, of Roger Miller & Sons, contractors, and the Assistant Vice-President is Mr. F. Nelson.

The Medaille Militaire, which has recently been conferred upon Sir Douglas Haig, gives the Field-Marshal a very rare distinction—one that he shares with Viscount French—for the decoration, which is a few years older than the V. C., is only bestowed upon privates, N. C. O.'s and generals who have commanded-in-chief against the enemy.

The ribbon of the Medaille Militaire is of yellow and green, and polius who wear the striking combination of colors enjoy several pleasant privileges, besides a pension of 100 francs a year. While the holder of the decoration is on active service he is entitled to a salute from men of his own rank and to the presentation of arms by sentries, while he may stay out of barracks later than the ribbonless soldier.—Tit-Bits.

What will
You say?

When the war is over and won,
—when the war worn soldiers come back to Canada and home,

—when the cost is counted, the cost in precious lives, in the limbs, eye-sight and shattered health of our noble fighters in the battle lines—the cost in money, in sacrifice and in self-denial—

What part will you have played?

Will you have the right to cheer and say:—

"I did my best—I saved and denied myself—I lent every cent I could rake and scrape to help my country and our fighting boys—I can claim a full share in the glorious Victory because I did everything I could"

—Or, will you have to slink shamefaced and conscience-stricken away from the cheering crowds to your own mean solitude?

If you buy Victory Bonds—the duty of to-day—now—to the limit of your ability with every dollar you can raise—then—and only then—can you say:

"I have done my best"

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee,

CHAIRMAN APPEALS FOR RENEWED EFFORT

Vancouver's Loan Canvass —Must Stimulate Victoria to Greater Endeavor

"It is quite fit and proper that the city which has the proud distinction of having sent the greatest number of soldiers overseas in proportion to its population, should lead in subscribing a greater amount per capita than a fair division throughout Canada would amount to," says E. J. Down, Chairman of the Victoria Loan Publicity Committee.

"The citizens of Victoria can now help to maintain the proud position which Victoria is now occupying in the Dominion by equalizing in a monetary sense the great record which has been secured by her splendid contribution to the fighting forces of the Empire."

Vancouver Battle.

"We have another point to remember. We have accepted a challenge from Vancouver that we will to Greater Victoria subscribe more than one-half the amount Vancouver raises within its own city limits. This is a perfectly fair competition arranged on a fair basis."

"A telephone message from Vancouver gave the information that within the city limits they have already secured subscriptions amounting to over $5,000,000. As you will notice we are behind in our proportionate amount."

"It will not be the fault of the executive nor the canvassers if we fail to beat Vancouver. The responsibility will rest with the citizens alone, and it is hoped that during the coming week all will rally to the cause and help to once more put the quietus on Vancouver's ambitions for a superior place in the sun of our great Dominion than she has ever occupied before, thanks to Victoria."

STEWART STRICKEN BY THE EPIDEMIC

Miner is Here From Northern Town; Revival of Camp
Prophesied

Stewart is one of the mining camps which has suffered seriously from influenza. There was no doctor in the settlement, a very small quantity of drugs, and not a drop of liquor to be had. When it was realized that the conditions in the settlement were serious, the men from the road gangs, miners and prospectors in the neighborhood dropped their tools and came in from all quarters, some of them tramping twenty miles in the night to reach the little settlement in order to nurse—urgent—cases. This is the statement brought down by T. MacGivern, who arrived at the Dominion Hotel yesterday.

Mr. MacGivern says that the conditions are very serious from the "flu" in Stewart, two men having died before the party left and others were in extremis at the time. He says the lack of an available liquor supply has been seriously felt and that the miners resent the action of the Government in not throwing down the barriers at a time like the present. He wishes to acknowledge on behalf of the people of Stewart the courtesy of the Granby Co. in sending a doctor from Anxox to advise on urgent cases. The men were obliged to turn to, and do the nursing because nearly all the women were down at the time he left.

Mining Prospects.
Mr. MacGivern brings a most optimistic report in regard to the future of the Stewart mining camp, which he says is still destined to be one of the principal gold and silver producers in the province. He speaks particularly of the Bush property near Cascade Creek, which was bonded to Spokane-Fernie interests nearly two years ago on the recommendation of Patrick Daly. This property was acquired from O. B. Bush by a New York syndicate, who worked it for two years but did not feel encouraged to proceed with the development. It was afterwards acquired by the interests of which Mr. Neil, of Spokane, is the leading figure and, as will have been noticed, Mr. Neil is now out from Stewart making arrangements for transportation of ore. Mr. MacGivern states that he had definite information of a shipment of ore to be carried out this winter, following improved transportation from the Salmon River district, where the Bush property, among others, is located.

He spoke highly also of the Nesbitt and George properties and said they were typical of the future of the Stewart area which is now beginning to recover from a period of eclipse by other camps. A new company was incorporated last week to work the Lesley group, also in the Salmon River district. Stewart, as the distributing centre for the camps, found the northern portion of the Portland Canal, is looking for rapid development from the anticipated revival of mining in the district.

COMING BY-ELECTION

Conservatives Will Meet to Nominate on Monday, November 25 Next.

Monday, November 25, is the date decided upon by the Conservatives of the Alberni constituency for the holding of a nominating convention to select a candidate to contest the seat rendered vacant by the untimely death of Richard P. Wallis, who defeated J. F. Bledsoe in the former by-election. Arrangements have been made for a full representation of delegates from every part of the riding and the convention will find no difficulty, it is said, in the matter of aspirants. Sentiment among the electors, however, appears to be favoring the candidacy of Major Richard Burt, M. C., whose brilliant record of military service is expected to appeal to the electors and not him the seat, should he decide to contest it.

As already stated in these columns the Government has not yet had an opportunity to discuss the question of an election date, and it is hardly likely that any pronouncement will be made until after Premier Oliver returns from the conference of Provincial Premiers to be held in Ottawa on November 19.
